1080. NATURAL RESOURCE DAMAGE ASSESSMENTS*Significance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c)
CERCLACFR Citation: 43 CFR 11Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory, March 20, 1989.

42 USC 9651(c)(3) requires biennial review and revision as appropriate of the regulations.

Abstract: CERCLA allows natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. Section 301(c)(2)(A) calls for the promulgation of simplified procedures for coastal and marine environments through the use of a computer model known as the natural resource damage assessment model for coastal and marine environments (NRDAM/CME). Section 301(c)(3) of CERCLA requires the biennial review of these natural resource damage assessment regulations. Since type A regulations were published as a final rule with an effective date of April 20, 1987, the Department will issue an advance notice of proposed rulemaking (ANPRM). This ANPRM will ask trustees, other interested parties, and members of the public to draw upon their experience with the type A procedures to advise the Department of areas where revisions to the type A procedures may be appropriate.

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory, September 1, 1988. 42 USC 9651(c)(3) requires biennial review and revision as appropriate of the regulations.

Abstract: CERCLA allows natural resource trustees to bring a claim against a potentially responsible party for resources that have been injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. Section 301(c)(2)(B) calls for the promulgation of a set of alternative protocols for the testing, sampling, and valuing of natural resource damages, referred to as the type B procedures. Section 301(c)(3) of CERCLA requires the biennial review of these natural resource damage assessment regulations. Since the general process and type B regulations were published as a final rule with an effective date of September 1, 1986, the Department will issue an advance notice of proposed rulemaking. This ANPRM will ask trustees, other interested parties, and members of the public to draw upon their experience with the type B procedures, and the general assessment process, to advise the Department of areas where revisions to the process and the type B procedures may be appropriate.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9651(c) CERCLA

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department has promulgated regulations, codified at 43 CFR Part 11, for the assessment of damages to natural resources injured by a release of a hazardous substance or, under certain circumstances, a discharge of oil. The regulations provide two types of assessment procedures: simplified procedures requiring minimal field investigation, referred to as the type A procedures; and alternative protocols for the testing, sampling, and valuing of natural resource damages, referred to as the type B procedures. The type A procedures that have been developed are for use in coastal and marine environments. The Department has stated that, when possible, it would develop additional type A procedures for other environments or natural resources. An advance notice of proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) will be issued by the Department. This ANPRM will solicit suggestions and supporting technical information for possible development of other type A procedures.

substantial controversy, the Service delayed the effective date until August. In response to a lawsuit, a preliminary injunction order was issued which ruled that delay of the effective date was without good cause. Consequently, the rule published in November is in force and effective as of February 8, 1988, as required by Court order. Abstract: The Service proposes to reintroduce a small catfish, the yellow madtom (Noturus flavipinnis), into the North Fork Holston River, Smyth County, Virginia, and determine this population to be a nonessential experimental population according to Section 10(j) of the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended. The Yellowfin madtom once likely inhabited many of the lower gradient streams of the Tennessee River basin upstream of Chattanooga, Tennessee. Presently, populations are confined to only three stream reaches in the Tennessee River Valley. This action is being taken in an effort to re-establish the yellowfin madtom within its historic range.

Abstract: The Service is proposing to amend the Translocation Regulations for southern sea otters, a threatened species of marine mammal. Regulations were promulgated for the translocation of southern sea otters to San Nicolas Island pursuant to PL 99-625. The proposed changes would address certain technical problems identified during the first year of the translocation concerning the age and number of animals released at any one time, the number of animals with implanted radio transmitters, the season for capture, and the retention of animals in temporary holding pens. The NPS wants to make technical revisions to clarify requirements for both applicants and the Service. Also, the existing regulations exempt two classes of operators from compliance. Because of these exemptions, the regulations apply to only 35% of the existing operations resulting in avoidable impacts to park resources and visitor values from unregulated operations. Finally, the Service intends to revise the existing regulations to incorporate Congressionally mandated requirements and timetables governing nonfederal oil and gas development in the Big Cypress National Preserve Addition. Examples of such revisions include: making the regulations applicable to all oil and gas operations within all units of the National Park System; updating terms for consistency with existing policies, practices, and laws; removing the monetary ceiling and floor on bonds and security deposits so that bonds may be calculated and posted commensurate with reclamation costs; revising sections of the regulations to make them consistent with the enabling (Cont)

1150. MANAGEMENT OF MINERAL DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATED WITH MINING CLAIMS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1901 et seq Mining in the Parks Act of 1976; 16 USC 1 et seq NPS Organic Act; 30 USC 21 et seq Mining Law of 1872

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 9, Subpart A

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The existing regulations at 36 CFR Part 9, Subpart A, promulgated in January of 1977, contain several provisions that are either outdated or have proven difficult to understand, enforce and comply with. Most notable is a provision regarding the use of water in connection with mining claims within National Park System units. The current language creates a "catch 22" for miners seeking to use water in connection with their claims. In order to use water in a park, a miner must have perfected water right. However, to obtain a perfected water right, a miner must use water. Herein lies the "catch 22." The National Park Service (NPS) would like to rectify this dilemma through a rule change that would eliminate the perfected water right language while at the same time preserve the Service's ability to protect water quality and quantity. Additional changes sought by the NPS are as follows: Several sections of the regulations refer to a surface disturbance moratorium (mandated by the Mining in the Parks Act of 1976, 16 USC 1901 et seq.) which expired in 1980. Other sections include transitional procedures used temporarily in implementing the regulations.

1151. MINERALS MANAGEMENT: NONFEDERAL RIGHTS OTHER THAN OIL AND GAS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1 et seq; 31 USC 9701; 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 9, Subpart C

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Extensive nonfederal mineral rights exist within units of the National Park System. The Service presently regulates only nonfederal oil and gas activities occurring in those units. Mineral activities, other than those associated with nonfederal oil and gas, are occurring in approximately 13 units of the System. There are also 7 additional units in which nonfederal mineral development is currently proposed or has recently been proposed. The Service is charged by Congress to ensure that the development of nonfederal mineral rights within park boundaries is consistent with the purposes for which the units were established. The proposed regulation would establish procedures and standards governing nonfederal mineral development, other than nonfederal oil and gas, in a manner that protects affected park units until such time that the Service has sufficient funds to acquire the mineral right.

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 9, Subpart A

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The intent of this current rulemaking is to explain that mineral development on mining claims within the boundaries of units of the National Park System is governed by regulations at 36 CFR Part 9, Subpart A without regard to whether the claim is patented or how the claim is accessed. This rulemaking also explains the relationship of the 36 CFR Part 9, Subpart A regulations to those governing access in Alaska in 43 CFR Part 36. This rulemaking is necessary because confusion exists in the mining community in Alaska as to the scope of these regulations due to a regulatory provision that was contained at 36 CFR Part 13.15(d)(1) that exempted operators from compliance with the 36 CFR Part 9, Subpart A regulations if the operators could access their patented claims without crossing federally owned parklands. Because there was no legal basis for such an exemption in either the Mining In The Parks Act or the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act of 1980, the Department eliminated the exemption when it promulgated its regulations at 43 CFR Part 36.

Abstract: The proposed regulation would establish Bureau-specific solicitation provisions, contract clauses and prescriptions for their use. These are necessary to supplement and implement the Federal Acquisition Regulation and the Department of the Interior Acquisition Regulation. This will provide standard contractual language for provisions and clauses not otherwise available in the Federal or Interior regulations that are needed by our operational contracting activities. This action should result in cost savings as this development and standardization will relieve the individual contracting activities of the responsibility of developing their own.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 83

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed rule revision will resolve problems encountered with existing regulations published almost ten years ago. Revisions will reduce time and resources required to process petitions, clarify terms and definitions, interpret criteria, add a process whereby groups may withdraw a petition, improve the appeal process and respond to changing conditions. The revised rule will be more cost effective for the Department and Indian groups petitioning for Federal acknowledgment. The proposed revisions will be published taking into consideration ten years of experience with the regulations. Revisions will reflect recommendations received from the Congress, Indian groups and tribes, other Federal agencies and national organizations.

1180. ● SMALL ESTATES - OSAGE

Legal Authority: 92 Stat. 1660

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 18

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking action would permit the Field Solicitor, Pawhuska, Oklahoma, to determine the heirs, devisees and/or legatees of estates under the jurisdiction of the Osage Agency, consisting of Osage headright interest, real estate on which restrictions against alienation have not been removed, and/or funds on deposit at the Osage Agency, all of which do not exceed a valuation of $10,000 on the date of death of a decedent, when requested in writing by one or more of the heirs, devisees and/or legatees; provided, that a court of competent jurisdiction has not proceeded to administer or probate the estate. The administration of such estates by the Field Solicitor would alleviate the necessity of the employment of an attorney by the beneficiaries, approval of the will pursuant to 25 CFR Part 17, and the filing of administration or probate proceedings in State Court. Because of the size of these estates, it is financially impractical for the beneficiaries to employ attorneys for that purpose.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 25 USC 13; PL 98-473

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 20

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Bureau is amending existing Financial Assistance and Social Services Program regulations to further define the adult care services provided to Indian people. These proposed regulations define the extent of the program, establish eligibility requirements, and establish adult care services as a social services program separate and distinct from the general assistance program. The revision is needed to specifically define the Bureau's role in the provision of institutional and in-home care to Indian adults who are mentally or physically handicapped or otherwise disabled. The Bureau is also amending miscellaneous assistance provisions to conform with the congressional directive in Public Law 98-473. Miscellaneous assistance will be revised and defined as burial assistance. Emergency assistance previously provided under miscellaneous assistance was transferred to general assistance by revision of 25 CFR Part 20(c) on September 30, 1985.

Abstract: This rulemaking action is to add a new Part 70 to govern the issuance of Certificates of Degree of Indian Blood (CDIB's). This rulemaking action is intended to clarify the circumstances under which the Bureau will issue CDIB's; the documents and records on which the Bureau will base the issuance of CDIB's; and the procedures that individuals will need to follow, including any documentation requirements, to obtain CDIB's.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 2

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The present administrative appeal regulations are ambiguous and misleading. It is difficult to tell what issues may be appealed and to whom the appeal should be sent. Most deadlines are uncertain. Those that are certain are often unrealistic. It is also unclear when a final decision will be rendered by the Interior Board of Indian Appeals and when it will be rendered by the Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs. Alternatives will be developed by reviewing the existing appeal regulations of other agencies.

DOI—BIA

Final Rule Stage

Consideration will be given to specifying which types of appeals go to the Assistant Secretary and which to the Board. The alternative of providing for the Assistant Secretary to make a case-by-case decision whether or not to refer the matter to the Board will also be considered. The primary benefit should be reduced frustration for both appellants and the BIA officials who handle the appeals. The greatest cost may be that both appellants and BIA officials may have to comply with more specified procedures and meet more deadlines in order for the system to work.

Abstract: The present regulations contain a very incomplete criminal code that does not cover many areas of the law that are usually in the laws of the State where the reservation is located. The current regulations also contain very sketchy provisions on criminal and civil procedure. It is proposed to update the sections on criminal offenses, and essentially create new sections on criminal procedures, domestic relations, probate proceedings, appellate proceedings and juvenile proceedings. This will provide the Courts of Indian Offenses with more complete and up to date procedures and rules. Courts will have a six month period from the date of publications of the final rule to the effective date in which to revise their court codes. It is not anticipated that this revision will have any effect on the annual case load for these courts or require additional staffing. Therefore, the initiation of these rules should not result in additional costs.

Abstract: This rulemaking action is being taken to amend the regulations contained in 25 CFR Part 61. Part 61 contains general enrollment procedures which can be made specifically applicable in the preparation of a particular roll by the Secretary by amending section 61.4 to include the qualifications for enrollment for that particular roll. Under the Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Tribe of Indians Distribution of Judgment Funds Act of 1987, the Secretary has been directed to prepare certain rolls of Cow Creek Indians to be used in the implementation of the Act. The proposed amendment is, therefore, to make the procedures contained in Part 61 applicable to the preparation of the Cow Creek rolls by adding in section 61.4 the qualifications for enrollment for each of the rolls to be prepared.Timetable:

The proposed revisions would not change the underlying policy of the current rule which is to pay for private counsel to represent Indian tribes only in exceptional circumstances. The principal changes involve representation in child custody proceedings, services of tribal court personnel, and non-litigation services. The proposed revision would also provide that when trust resources are involved, tribes and individual Indian allottees are eligible to apply for and receive federally appropriated funds under 25 CFR 89.Timetable:

Additional Information: In May 1982, the District Court for the District of Arizona invalidated the regulation of 25 CFR 167 and ordered the Bureau to publish new regulations. The Bureau published interim regulations on Hopi partitioned lands on September 8, 1982. During the past year several meetings have been held with the Navajo Tribe to obtain concurrence to include Navajo partitioned land in the regulations. The Navajo Tribe expressed the desire for separate regulations and the Bureau has drafted a new regulation for Navajo Partitioned Land within the existing 25 CFR Part 167.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 323 to 328

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 169

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs intends to amend several sections of its rights-of-way regulations which impose a variety of specific requirements on grantees of rights-of-way over Indian lands. These requirements were intended to implement public laws enacted around the turn of the century which authorized the Secretary of the Interior to issue rights-of-way for various specific purposes. In 1948 Congress gave the Department comprehensive authority to grant rights-of-way for any purpose or any term of years without the antiquated restrictions of the older statutes. The regulations continue to reflect the old requirements and the result has been inconsistent application of the 1948 Act. The removal or revisions of these sections would end that practice.

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs is amending the pertinent sections of the regulations governing charges and costs assessed the electric power customers for the electric power, energy and associated electric power services provided by the San Carlos Indian Irrigation (Project), Arizona. The purpose of the regulatory amendments is to increase the costs to the public for the services provided by the electric power division of the Project. The proposed rules increase the electric power assessment rates in the residential and general service rate schedules. This action causes the generation of needed additional revenues for the Project. The increased assessment rates reflect the increased operating costs associated with labor, equipment and supplies. The electric power bills for service under the residential and general rate schedules will be increased by approximately 12.4 percent.

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service (MMS) published new oil and gas product valuation regulations in the Federal Register on January 15, 1988 (53 FR 1184 and 53 FR 1230). If a lessee has a non-arm's-length contract or has no contract for processing or transportation of oil or gas, the new regulations provide for an allowable deduction from royalty payments based upon the lessee's reasonable actual costs during the reporting period. These actual cost deductions allow the lessee to deduct operating and maintenance expenses, overhead, and at the lessee's option, either depreciation plus a return on undepreciated capital investment in the processing plant or transportation system, or a fixed cost equal to the initial depreciable investment multiplied by a rate of return. An amendment is needed to the regulations to establish the method to be used to determine the cost of capital, i.e., rate of return, to be applied to the lessee's investment in a processing plant or transportation system.

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service (MMS) published final revised regulations governing the valuation of gas from Federal leases onshore and on the Outer Continental Shelf and from Indian Tribal and allotted leases in the Federal Register on January 15, 1988 (53 FR 1230). The proposed gas valuation provisions of section 206.153, in part, govern the determination of value in situations where the lessee's contract for the sale of gas prior to processing provides for the value to be determined based upon a percentage of the purchases proceeds resulting from processing the gas. However, the inclusion of these percentages-of-proceeds contracts under section 206.153 has created unreasonable burdens on lessees. Consequently, MMS is proposing to amend its regulations to provide for the valuation of gas under percentage-of-proceeds contracts to be under the unprocessed gas valuation standards of section 206.152, rather than section 206.153.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 206

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing regulations governing the valuation of geothermal resources provide insufficient guidance for the valuation of geothermal resources utilized to generate electricity in a lessee-owned power plant. Consequently, the Minerals Management Service has issued a report entitled "Valuation of Federal Geothermal Resources--Electrical Generation" which describes a "geothermal netback procedure" to value these "no sales" resources. An amendment is needed to the existing regulations to provide regulatory guidance after receipt and consideration of comments from the public to the existing geothermal netback procedure.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1339

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 230

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking is needed to add new regulations covering recoupment and refunds of excess payments made under Federal offshore mineral leases which are subject to section 10 of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act of 1953 (OCSLA), 43 USC 1339. This rule would establish requirements and guidelines for crediting (recouping) excess payments of royalties, rentals, bonuses, or other amounts against a current or future payment obligation or refunding such excess payment to any person lawfully entitled to receive a refund or credit for an overpayment made under an offshore lease. The new regulation is intended to lessen confusion on the part of payors, operators, and the Minerals Management Service.

1225. REVISION OF REGULATIONS GOVERNING APPEALS

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1701 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 243

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Payors who appeal a bill for payment of additional royalty, rents, bonuses, penalties, or other assessments, are required by the existing appeal regulations to submit payment of the billed amount or to post a bond in an amount adequate to indemnify the lessor from loss or damage. However, some bills for payment that have been appealed have been neither paid nor secured by an acceptable surety. An amendment to the existing regulations is needed to establish a requirement that payment must be made or that an acceptable surety must be posted within a specified period of time as a condition for acceptance of the appeal for consideration by the Director, Minerals Management Service (MMS). An amendment is also needed to permit the posting of letters of credit, in addition to bonds, in accordance with current MMS practice.

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.44; 30 CFR 250.45; 30 CFR 250.46; 30 CFR 250.57

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Amendments to the Department of the Interior (DOI) Air Quality regulation for oil and gas operations will be proposed for all Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) areas. The changes would update requirements and consider the need for current information collection burdens, and provide additional safeguards for those pollutants which could be critical to air quality in areas adjoining the OCS. A determination of potential costs and benefits cannot be made until the final rulemaking has been prepared for RIN 1010-AA61, dealing with amendments to the DOI Air Quality regulation for oil and gas operations adjacent to the State of California. Considerable information has been developed during the negotiations conducted to implement that rulemaking. There have also been revisions to the related Environmental Protection Agency regulations which will affect both of these rulemakings. Timing, content, and format for this rulemaking for all OCS areas will not

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR Part 250 which govern oil and gas and sulphur operations in the OCS will be revised to address in greater specificity training requirements for personnel engaged in oil, gas, and sulphur drilling, development, and production operations in the OCS. Training requirements were addressed in a proposed rule to consolidate into one document the rules governing oil and gas and sulphur operations in the OCS which was published on March 18, 1986 (51 FR 9316). The training provisions of that proposed rule have been revised, updated, and consolidated under a new Subpart O, Training. Other alternatives considered were not revising the regulations and revising only those regulations identified by industry. Promulgation of the regulation is not expected to result in costs significantly more than those incurred through the unregulated use of good commercial practices.

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR 250 which govern oil and gas and sulphur operations in the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) will be revised to address sulphur exploration, development, and production operations with more specificity. Sulphur operations are currently addressed through rules applicable to oil, gas, and sulphur and through OCS Order No. 10, Sulphur Drilling Procedures, issued by the Gulf of Mexico OCS Region. Comments received as the result of the publication on March 18, 1986 (51 FR 9316), of a proposed rule to consolidate rules governing oil, gas, and sulphur operations in the OCS included recommendations for the development of regulations which treat sulphur operations in the OCS with greater specificity. Significance: Regulatory Program

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.47

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Amendments to the DOI Air Quality regulation for oil and gas operations will be proposed for Outer Continental Shelf areas adjacent to California. The changes would provide additional safeguards for those pollutants which could be critical to air quality in the region. The costs have been determined to have a net present value of approximately $25M to the regulated industry; the net benefits have not been quantified but would be a reduction in any effect of emissions from OCS operations on the ozone levels in adjacent onshore areas. This may be expected to yield cost reductions in health services and other related areas. The DOI has conducted a conflict assessment to determine the likelihood of the interested and affected parties being able to reach an agreement on an air quality regulatory program. If the affected parties involved can develop a mutually agreeable set of requirements, then DOI will initiate rulemaking based on that agreement.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR 250.126 on the manufacture of safety and pollution-prevention equipment (i.e., surface and subsurface safety valves) are being amended. The amendment would update the American National Standards Institute/American Society of Mechanical Engineers (ANSI/ASME) SPPE-1 standard from the 1985 edition to the 1988 edition and allow compliance with either the updated version of the ANSI/ASME SPPE-1 quality assurance (QA) program (1988 edition) or the proposed American Petroleum Institute (API) QA program (API Spec Q1 in combination with API Specs 14A and 14b). Other alternatives considered were not to amend the rule and to continue using ANSI/ASME SPPE-1 as the only type of certification for the QA program. The costs to lessees under the API program or the updated ANSI/ASME SPPE-1 program are not expected to be significantly different than the costs under the current program. If there is any cost difference, it is expected to be a reduction in cost since the use of the API program is an option to the use of the ANSI/ASME SPPE-1 program. Lessees would not be expected to choose the use of the more expensive of the approved QA programs.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1863; 43 USC 1331 et seq; 42 USC 2000d to 2000e

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 271

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: There are no provisions in current Minerals Management Service regulations which provide a mechanism for remedy of unlawful discrimination in Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) employment. Rules would be developed to provide a process whereby persons who believed they had been denied employment because of unlawful discrimination would have a forum. These rules would implement the purposes of section 604 of the OCS Lands Act Amendment of 1978. Alternatives considered are no action, issuance of a policy statement and no rules, and proposal of extensive affirmative action rules similar to those rescinded in the past. Very few complaints are expected to arise as there has been no evidence of discrimination to date. Therefore, costs are expected to be minimal. Benefits would be the assurance that the requirements of section 604 are being fully carried out.

1240. PROSPECTING FOR MINERALS OTHER THAN OIL, GAS, AND SULPHUR IN THE OUTER CONTINENTAL SHELF*Significance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Authority: 43 USC 1334CFR Citation: 30 CFR 280Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Proposes the desirability of new regulations to govern exploration on the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) for minerals other than oil, gas, and sulphur under the authority of the OCS Lands Act; and requests comments and recommendations from interested parties. Alternative is to specify requirements in a permitting document rather than in regulations. Promulgation of regulations is not expected to result in costs significantly more than those incurred through the unregulated use of good commercial practices. The rules will require that hard mineral operations will be conducted in a manner which will ensure safety and protection of the environment.

Abstract: Section 528(2) of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977, exempted from the requirements of the Act "the extraction of coal for commercial purposes where the surface mining operation affects two acres or less." On May 7, 1987, the President signed PL 100-34 which repealed the exemption. The rule action would remove the exemption provision from the regulations at 30 CFR 700 and 30 CFR 870.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq; PL 100-34

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 816.74; 30 CFR 817.74

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The regulations at 30 CFR 816.74/817.74 allow, with the approval of the regulatory authority, the disposal of excess spoil through placement on preexisting benches provided that the standards set forth in sections 816.71/817.71 are met. These standards contain the general requirements for the disposal of excess spoil. Based on the draft study entitled "Encouraging Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation via Remining: A Federal, State and Industry Initiative" and comments received, OSMRE has reviewed these regulations. Based on this review, OSMRE has concluded that excess spoil, when placed on the benches is similar to backfilling and grading of a highwall and bench and therefore could be regulated under the backfilling and grading regulations in section 816.102/817.102, in lieu of the "excess spoil" standards while maintaining the same environmental and safety standards. The proposed rule would apply the backfilling and grading requirements to disposal of excess spoil on preexisting benches.

In particular, the rules would allow for a more efficient and practical time frame for scheduling assessment conferences. Abstract: The Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act (the Act) doesn't specifically define the point at which regulatory jurisdiction ends. Therefore, a regulation is needed to define that point. The regulation in question is specific to the responsibilities of the Department of the Interior, OSMRE, and implements the Act. No other Federal agency is authorized to undertake this action on behalf of the Department. OSMRE has never addressed this issue in a rulemaking. The regulatory authority will issue a written determination ending regulatory jurisdiction under the Act when the following conditions apply. For permanent program operations, it proposed to terminate regulatory jurisdiction under the Act at the time of final bond release or when all regulatory program requirements have been met. For initial program operations, regulatory jurisdiction will end when all requirements of the regulatory program have been met.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement (OSMRE) proposes to remove the definition of "support facilities" from its regulations. In reviewing the decisions of regulatory authorities during the time periods when no definition was in effect (prior to the 1983 introduction of a definition and since the 1985 suspension of the definition), OSMRE found that the identification of facilities that support surface coal mining operations has been conducted in a manner consistent with the intent of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act (SMCRA). Therefore, OSMRE has determined that a definition of "support facilities" is not needed in order to ensure that such facilities are regulated under SMCRA. This proposed rule would impose only minor costs to the coal industry since relatively few operations will be affected.

1261. EXEMPTION FOR COAL EXTRACTION INCIDENTAL TO THE EXTRACTION OF OTHER MINERALS

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq;
PL 100-34

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 702

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Surface Mining Act exempts mining operations that extract other minerals where coal does not exceed 16 2/3 percent of tonnage of minerals removed for sale. Evidence of abuse of this exemption has been identified. Proposed regulations would establish procedures to administer the exemption. The costs of compliance for these operations are undetermined. Benefits would be to the public in terms of protection of health, safety, and environment from detrimental effects of mining. Legitimate noncoal operators would be able to compete fairly with those operations now using the exemption to undersell their legitimate competitors.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed rule would comply with a court order of the District Court for the District of Columbia which remanded OSM reporting requirements for surface coal exploration. The proposed rule would revise existing requirements to include the filing of a notice by all individuals or operators planning coal exploration, and specify the information required on applications for coal exploration. The obligation to report is a standing requirement of existing regulations. This rule would expand the requirement to report. Because affected States already have the expanded requirement in place, no additional costs or benefits are expected to be associated with the rule.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq;

The rule will address the problem of combination spillways and will specify a spillway configuration that must be installed to safely pass the designed precipitation event. In some cases, the rule may allow one spillway to serve as a combination principal and emergency spillway. It would provide that OSMRE must accept a State's response as constituting appropriate action to cause a violation to be corrected or showing good cause for such failure, unless that response is arbitrary, capricious, or an abuse of discretion under the State program. The rule would also provide a mechanism whereby a State could seek informal review within OSMRE of an initial decision to inspect a mine site when OSMRE rejects the State's response to the ten day notice. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq; PL 100-34

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 870

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The present regulations require the weight of coal (for the purpose of calculating the tonnage upon which the AML fee is calculated) to be determined at the point of first sale. This weight includes not only that of the saleable coal, but also that of the extraneous material including the moisture content. Recent action by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) issued a revenue-ruling for the Black Lung Tax to allow for the deduction of a moisture content allowance from the tonnage upon which the Black Lung Tax is collected. The IRS decision to make this change in its regulations was based on a Federal court decision, Taft Coal Co. v. U.S., 605 F. Supp. 366, (N.D. Ala. 1984). OSMRE proposes to change the existing regulations to create a standard moisture allowance which would be consistent with that allowed by the IRS for the Black Lung Tax program. Regulations dealing with the basis upon which a tax or fee is assessed should be consistent for administrative convenience and equity to the coal operator. Federal action is required since OSMRE is directly responsible for collecting the AML fee and for establishing the regulations promulgating (cont)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These changes to 43 CFR 429 will provide greater flexibility in determining the value of low value uses by third parties of lands administered by the Bureau of Reclamation. Currently an appraisal is required to provide the use value. A periodic review of the value of the use will also be provided. And finally, the authority of Reclamation's regional directors to modify or waive the values to be recovered is further clarified.

1330. NONDISCRIMINATION ON THE BASIS OF AGE IN PROGRAMS OR ACTIVITIES RECEIVING FEDERAL FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE*Legal Authority: 42 USC 6103CFR Citation: 28 CFR 42, Subpart I, (New)Legal Deadline: NoneAbstract: This regulation will implement the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, as amended, in programs or activities assisted by the Department of Justice (DOJ). The statute, 42 USC 6103(a)(4), requires that Federal agencies providing Federal financial assistance promulgate implementing regulations consistent with the general regulations issued by the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS), and the statute provides that such agency regulations shall not be effective until approved by HHS. In 1980 the proposed rule was published for comment, modified, approved by the DOJ Office of Legal Counsel, and on November 10, 1980 a draft final rule was forwarded to HHS for approval. On July 13, 1984 HHS conditionally approved the draft regulation. On August 12, 1987 DOJ submitted to HHS a draft final regulation.

apply for an extension of stay as a nonimmigrant visitor for pleasure (B-2). Faced with ever-increasing adjudications caseloads and with resources which fail to keep pace with those increases, the Service must continually seek ways to carry out its responsibilities in a more efficient manner. By limiting the situations under which a visitor for pleasure may seek an extension of stay, the Service will decrease the amount of resources which must be dedicated to this area and will be able to increase its efforts in other areas having higher priority.

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1103; 31 USC 9701

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 103.7

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Immigration and Naturalization Service ("the Service") entertains numerous requests for Verification of Information from INS Service Records, via Form G-641. This form has been misused as a substitute document, while other INS documents are being prepared (i.e., I-94, I-551 or Certificate of Naturalization or Citizenship). Should an applicant need to have his or her status verified while waiting for one of these documents to be processed, and such verification can be satisfied by obtaining a copy of a document (certified if necessary), an FOIA/PA request can be made. If verification is needed to obtain a benefit and a copy will not suffice, the agency needing verification can make a direct request to the INS and it will be handled as appropriate.

Discontinuing the use of Form G-641 will also eliminate the need to request Form G-350, Certification of Birth Data. Requests for this document are minimal since foreign-born children are issued an alien registration receipt card or a citizenship document by INS and no other form of identification should be necessary.

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 214.2(h)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (IRCA) imposes sanctions against employers who hire aliens not authorized to work. Since many of the nation's agricultural employers have become dependent upon such workers to meet production and harvesting needs, Congress created the Special Agricultural Workers (SAW) Program and the Replenishment Agricultural Workers (RAW) Program to provide permanent resident status to certain agricultural workers. To clarify the process through which employers can employ nonimmigrant seasonal and temporary agricultural workers, Congress moved agricultural employment from H-2 classification into a separate H-2A class, and incorporated a labor certification process into the statute. This interim rule establishes special H-2A regulatory criteria. It supplements the Department of Labor's rules covering the temporary agricultural labor certification process. This rule amends Service regulations relating therefore to temporary alien workers seeking classification under section 101(a)(15) (H) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1101 (a)(15)(B); 8 USC 1184

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 214.2(b)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice announces the intent of the Immigration and Naturalization Service ("the Service") to set forth, in regulatory form, the special requirements for admission, extension and maintenance of status of nonimmigrant alien visitors for business and visitors for pleasure. Much of the Service's written policy relating to this subject is now contained in the Service's Operations Instructions at O.I. 214.2(b). Because it is more appropriate for interpretations and rules to be set forth in regulatory form, this information will become part of 8 CFR 214. In addition, the proposed rulemaking will clarify the criteria for according B-1 classification to members of certain occupations (such as participants in religious programs and members of foreign film crews). By issuing this advance notice, the Service is providing an opportunity to the public to submit comments and make suggestions at an earlier stage of the process. This will result in a proposed rule which is more comprehensive in its scope and more understandable to the public.

Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Labor.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of regulations selected for review or development.

SUMMARY: This document sets forth the Department's Semiannual Agenda of Regulations which has been selected for review or development during the coming one-year period. The agenda complies with the requirements of both Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

DATES: The agenda includes all regulations which are expected to be under review or development between October 1988 and October 1989.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Roland G. Droitsch, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Policy, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy, Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue, NW., Room S-2312, Washington, DC 20210, (202) 523-9058.

Note: Information pertaining to a specific regulation can be obtained from the Agency Contact listed for that particular regulation.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act require the semiannual publication in the Federal Register of an agenda of regulations.

Executive Order 12291 became effective February 17, 1981, and in substance requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda, listing all the regulations it expects to have under active consideration for promulgation, proposal or review during the coming one-year period. It also requires the Department to conduct a Regulatory Impact Analysis for all "major" regulations being developed.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act became effective on January 1, 1981. It applies only to regulations for which a notice of proposed rulemaking was issued on or after January 1, 1981, and requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda, listing all the regulations it expects to propose or promulgate that are likely to have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities" (5 U.S.C. 602). For any regulation that will have this impact, the Department must conduct a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis to gauge the economic consequences of the rule, and to analyze the availability of more flexible approaches for lightening the rule's regulatory burden on "small entities."

If a proposed regulation will not have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities," the Department of Labor must publish a certification to that effect at the time of the general notice of proposed rulemaking or at the time of the publication of the final rule. That certification must be accompanied by a succinct statement explaining the reasons for the agency's determinations.

As permitted by law, the Department of Labor is combining this publication of its agendas under the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291.

The regulatory reform process, of which the Unified Agenda is a part, continues to be an extremely valuable aid in the development of better regulations by the Department. We believe that our regulatory reform program has resulted in improved regulatory management, more clearly written regulations and significantly less burdensome regulations.

Further improvement is certainly needed, and we are constantly seeking new and innovative approaches in pursuit of this goal. All interested members of the public are invited and encouraged to let Departmental officials know how our regulatory reform process can be further improved and, of course, to participate in and comment on the review or development of the regulations listed on the agenda.

The Department of Labor's next semiannual agenda, under Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, will be published in April 1989.

Ann McLaughlin,
Secretary of Labor.

The Secretary also is directed to designate occupations that may be particularly hazardous for minors between 16 and 18 years of age. Child Labor Regulation No. 3 sets forth the permissible industries and occupations in which 14 and 15 year olds may be employed. In addition, this regulation specifies the number of hours in a day and in a week, and time periods within a day that such minors may be employed. The nonagricultural hazardous occupations orders which prohibit the employment of minors in such occupations are also contained in 29 CFR 570. Changes in technology and job content over the years require a review of these regulations. In order to increase job opportunities for such minors, while maintaining essential protection for their well-being, modifications to these regulations may be needed.  Rules implementing Section 481 of the 1982 JTPA (29 USC 1781). The operational aspects of such rules need to be coordinated with the pending revisions to the Executive Order 11246 program

Abstract: These regulations cover nondiscrimination and affirmative action obligations of Federal contractors under Executive Order 11246, as amended, the Vietnam Era Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974 (38 U.S.C. 2012), as amended, and Section 503 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended. Proposed changes were published in the Federal Register on 12/28/79 and 2/22/80. The resulting final rule was published on 12/30/80 but its effective date was stayed pending review in accordance with President Reagan's Executive Order 12291 of 2/17/81. Subsequently, OFCCP published an ANPRM (7/14/81, supplemented 8/21/81) and a NPRM (8/25/81, supplemented 4/23/82). The NPRM also extended the suspension of the effective date of the 12/30/80 final rule. OFCCP's review of regulatory options continues, and includes consideration of proposed regulations to integrate the requirements of Section 481 of the Job Training Partnership Act of 1982 (29 U.S.C. 1781) with the Executive Order 11246 program.

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1; 29 CFR 5

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations govern labor standards applicable to federally funded or assisted construction contracts subject to the Davis-Bacon and Related Acts (as well as contracts subject to the Contract Work Hours and Safety Standards Act). The Department plans to implement provisions in these regulations that would permit contractors to expand their use of semi-skilled "helpers" on Davis-Bacon covered projects at wages lower than those paid to skilled journeymen. Revised final rules were originally published 05/28/82 (47 FR 23658), but were deferred on 07/26/82 (47 FR 32070) due to an injunction issued by the U.S. District Court. Although the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit has since upheld most of the key provisions published in 1982, the district court injunction remains in effect against certain provisions dealing with helpers. The Department intends to implement the helper provisions in accordance with the decisions of the District and Appeals Courts. A revised proposal was published 08/19/87 (52 FR 31366), and the comment period was later extended to 11/18/87 (52 FR 38473).

Abstract: Certain provisions of Final Rules published April 1, 1987, have been challenged as being promulgated in violation of the APA. Those sections deal with collection of forfeited compensation from on-going benefits. In order to ensure that any doubt as to the procedural validity of the rules is laid to rest, the Department has taken two actions: 1) publishing an interim final rule which reinstates the affected sections without the language which has been challenged; and 2) a proposed rule with an invitation to comment, which in effect would reinstate the April 1, 1987 rule but would assure that any defects in the comment period are corrected.

Abstract: These regulations establish the terms and conditions, pursuant to section 14(c) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), under which handicapped workers may be employed, under certificate, at wage rates less than those otherwise required by statute. The 1986 Amendments to the FLSA substantially revised section 14(c) to simplify worker certification by eliminating separate certification for more productive workers, multiple handicapped individuals, and those in evaluation or training and work activities centers. Abstract: This regulation sets forth restrictions on industrial homework and governs the issuance of certificates authorizing the employment of homeworkers in certain industries, pursuant to Section 11(d) of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). As originally issued, these regulations restricted the employment of industrial homework in seven industries: knitted outerwear; women's apparel; jewelry; buttons and buckles; gloves and mittens; handkerchiefs; and embroideries. The ban was removed on homework in the knitted outerwear industry by the Department on 11/9/81 following extensive hearings and public comment. This action was subsequently upheld by the District Court for the District of Columbia. However, on appeal the ban was reimposed 2/29/84 by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. On 3/27/84 the Department published a proposed rule rescinding the ban on homework in the knitted outerwear industry only. In addition to soliciting comments on the proposed rescission, the Department sought comments on various alternatives to such action (49 FR 11786). On November 5, 1984, a final rule was published lifting the ban on homework for employers (cont)

Abstract: The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 contains certain labor standards requirements for foreign agricultural workers employed under the H-2A foreign agricultural worker program, as well as for U.S. workers hired by employers who utilize foreign agricultural workers. The standards relate to pay, working conditions, housing, transportation and recruitment. Abstract: These regulations are being developed to implement the benefit provisions contained in Sec. 43 of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. The Act requires the Secretary of Labor to specify the percentage of prior salary which an "eligible protected employee" would receive as a benefit payment under the Act. An eligible protected employee is a person who has had at least 4 years of employment with a certificated air carrier as of October 24, 1978 and who loses his or her job during the ten years following such date in a bankruptcy or major employment contraction if and only if the Department of Transportation determines that the principal causes of such job loss was deregulation. On May 17, 1984 the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia held that Section 43 of the Airline Deregulation Act was unconstitutional. On July 16, 1985, the U.S. Court of Appeals decided that the employee protection provisions of Section 43 were severable from the legislative veto provisions. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled on March 25, 1987 that the legislative veto provisions were unconstitutional but the first right-to-hire provisions were constitutional, therefore, rulemaking can proceed on the (Cont'd)

Issuing a regulation will benefit grantees by reducing their uncertainty as to the applicable rules. No significant additional costs will result.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1182(a)(14)

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 656

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Experience in administering the regulations relating to the certification of immigrant aliens for permanent employment in the United States indicates that a number of changes should be made to these regulations. The proposed amendments would be intended to make labor certification process more efficient, to prevent abuse or manipulation of the labor certification process, to clarify some apparent ambiguities in the regulations, and to make the regulations easier to read. Before the Department of State (DOS) and the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) may issue visas and admit certain immigrant aliens to work permanently in the United States, the Secretary of Labor pursuant to section 212(a)(14) of the Immigration and Naturalization Act (INA) must certify to the Secretary of State and to the Attorney General that: (a) There are not sufficient United States workers who are able, willing, qualified and available at the time of the application for a visa and admission into the United States and at the place where the alien is to perform work; and (cont)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In early 1987, the President proposed legislation for a new Worker Readjustment Program to respond to dislocations caused by plant closings, mass layoffs, international competition and technological change. The Congress is considering worker readjustment legislation as a replacement for the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) Title III program for dislocated workers. The Department anticipates enactment in 1988. The new program will incorporate several important new changes. Among these changes are: (1) institutionalizing a State rapid response capability, (2) changing delivery system to mandate the designation of substate grantees, (3) focusing on better resource utilization through reallocation and reallocation provisions, (4) greater emphasis on training in innovative features such as certificates of continuing eligibility and individual vouchers for training. In addition, greater emphasis will be placed upon coordination and linkages among major training and employment program components such as the public employment service, the UI and TAA programs.

Abstract: Governors are responsible for resolving audits of their JTPA subgrantees and subcontractors. Current ETA policy requires federal review and approval of these resolutions only in cases of fraud, gross mismanagement and abuse. More routine audit resolutions are only reviewed on a sample basis during onsite compliance reviews. However, a recent legal opinion stated that the JTPA regulations as presently written could be construed as requiring federal review and approval of all Governors' audit resolutions. The regulations may have to be amended in order to implement ETA's policy.

Abstract: The regulation will provide States with administrative appeal rights before the Office of Administrative Law Judges for final determinations disallowing costs or imposing corrective actions as a result of all audits in the Federal-State unemployment benefit and allowance programs. Currently, no such appeal rights exist and if a State seeks review of one of the above actions the only appeal forum is the Federal Court. Provision of these appeal rights before the Office of Administrative Law Judges should reduce the workload of the Federal Court system and allow the Department of Labor adjudicate the issues in a more informal setting with the Administrative Law Judges, who are more accustomed to dealing with the particular issues involved. The regulation will also correct what is perceived as an inequity, since most Employment and Training Administration programs have administrative appeal rights.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: EO 12073; EO 10582

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 654.5(b)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Currently the Department of Labor only classifies civil jurisdictions (counties, cities over 50,000 population as well as townships and towns in certain selected States) as labor surplus areas. This policy has resulted in some employment centers in the nation's large metropolitan areas not being classified as labor surplus areas, even though the entire Metropolitan Statistical Areas or Primary Metropolitan Statistical Areas would meet the labor surplus area criteria if such geographic areas were classified. The proposed rule would grant the Assistant Secretary for Employment and Training the authority to classify Metropolitan Statistical Areas and Primary Metropolitan Statistical Areas as labor surplus areas to help alleviate unemployment in these areas. The change will add some additional labor surplus areas to the current list but it will not increase the funds going to such designated areas.

Abstract: The Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 (Public Law 99-272) Section 18003 amended the Small Business Act to require the Secretary of Labor to reduce the population criteria for labor surplus areas from fifty-thousand to twenty-five thousand. Section 18003 of Public Law 99-272 became effective on July 7, 1986. The Department of Labor is in the process of implementing the new requirements of the Law but such data did not exist for such areas on a monthly basis at the time Public Law 99-272 was enacted. Legal Authority: PL 97-300 Wagner-Peyser Act as amended by the JTPA
Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In September 1986, the Department of Labor announced in the Federal Register its review of the public employment service, raising the concern of the employment service capability to meet the current and future labor market needs, particularly the labor market needs that will emerge in the year 2000. The announcement provided the public an opportunity to respond either orally at public meetings held in October, 1986 or in writing directly to the Department. The announcement described the concern of the questions concerning the purpose and role of the employment service. An analysis of the public response to the announcement, as well as other data available to the Department from other research, studies, and papers provides the basis for the Department to propose a refocus of the employment service to address current and emerging labor force trends. Regulations may be proposed to the extent needed, to either implement any new legislation that may emerge or to achieve the new direction.

Significance: Regulatory Program

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 629, (Revision)
Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On October 13, the President signed into law the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) Amendments of 1986. In an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking of January 16, 1987, the Department indicated that, in addition to proposed rules for the JTPA Amendments of 1986, it would review fixed-unit price performance-based contracting to determine the need for regulatory revision. The Department has completed this review with the resulting determination of the need for regulatory revision in this area. Proposed regulatory revisions will be published as a final rule around the latter part of 1988. The revisions will deal with the following critical areas: (1) the definition of the term "training" for the purposes of 20 CFR 629.38(e)(2) the allocation of charges among the several cost categories of the final elements of performance--"placement in unsubsidized employment in the occupation trained for, and at the specific wage"--do not occur; (3) clarification regarding the generation of profits and the use of such profits by contractors and/or (4) the practice of making incremental payments to contractors for achieving interim performance benchmarks rather than full performance.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 29 USC 1135; 29 USC

Abstract: The proposed regulation is intended to provide an exemption from the bonding requirements of Section 412 (a) of ERISA for certain broker dealers and investment advisers who handle plan assets if the proposed regulation's alternative bonding requirements are met. If adopted, the regulation would permit broker-dealer and their investment adviser affiliates to substitute the fidelity bond required by the self-regulatory organizations of which they are members, subject to a minimum level of coverage, for the bond otherwise required by Section 412 of ERISA.

Abstract: In response to concerns raised by members of Congress and the mining community about the nature and accuracy of existing reporting obligations, MSHA established an intra-agency task force to review its requirements for reports of accidents, injuries and illnesses in coal and metal and nonmetal mines. The Agency focused on several aspects of the reporting requirements including the definition of an occupational injury or illness, and an expanded audit program. The Agency has determined that the existing regulations in Part 50 should be clarified and improved through the rulemaking process. MSHA will clarify the definitions of reportable injuries and illnesses and solicit suggestions from the public in this effort.

Abstract: MSHA has established a mining equipment approval program, including evaluation criteria, and corresponding safety standards requiring the use of certain equipment. Existing approval regulations do not generally apply to the diesel equipment now being used in underground coal mines. An Advisory Committee convened in January 1988 to make recommendations concerning what standards and regulations would be appropriate for coal mines. The Advisory Committee made recommendations to the Assistant Secretary for MSHA, to write proposed regulations for approval of equipment in July 1988.

Abstract: On July 10, 1987, the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia invalidated the Agency's existing interim relief regulation based in part, on procedural defects, holding that it was contrary to Congressional interest. (INT. UNION v. MSHA, 823 F. 2d 608 (D.C. Cir. 1987)). The agency is developing a NPRM which incorporates permissible exposure limits which are applicable to the hazards encountered in metal and nonmetal mines and exposure limits for most noxious and poisonous gases in underground coal mines. The proposal would solicit comment on which means of control would provide the necessary protection from airborne contaminants. Standards for use of respiratory protective equipment would replace an outdated incorporation by reference. The proposal would also update asbestos standards. Other issues being considered are: requirements for exposure monitoring and precautions for handling restricted-use chemicals; notification of workers of overexposures; and access to exposure limits.

1469. APPROVAL CRITERIA FOR RESPIRATORY PROTECTIVE DEVICES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under the 1977 Mine Act, MSHA and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) jointly approve respirators for use in hazardous atmospheres. New technology has been developed which has not been accommodated by the existing regulations. In addition, questions have been raised about laboratory testing and field performance of respirators. The decision has been made for NIOSH to have the lead in approval of respirators. MSHA will be involved with the devices which are uniquely adapted or required for mining. A proposed rule to remove MSHA's regulations upon completion of a concurrent NIOSH rulemaking was published in August 1987. However, further rulemaking is contingent upon NIOSH's timetables.

Abstract: Certain MSHA regulations require persons working in coal mines to be qualified or certified to perform certain tasks, e.g., testing for methane, making ventilation examinations, etc. The existing rule requires operators to submit certification and qualification applications to MSHA every six months for recertification. The proposal eliminates the six-month limitation, permitting persons to remain certified or qualified for as long as they continue to satisfy the substantive requirements and remain employed at the same coal mine or independent contractor.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 75.523-3

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In 1973, the Agency issued installation and performance requirements for automatic emergency brakes on rubber-tired, self-propelled electric face equipment for underground coal mines. However, there was not sufficient technical data to develop criteria for evaluating the designs of these braking systems. On July 30, 1974, the effective dates for compliance with 75.523-3 were suspended indefinitely. MSHA now has sufficient technical data to review the standard. On March 1, 1988, MSHA published a proposed safety standard that would require automatic emergency-parking brakes for rubber-tired, self-propelled electric face equipment used in underground coal mines (53 FR 6512). The automatic emergency-parking brakes described in the proposal engage when there is a loss of power to such equipment, and be activated by the equipment operator in an emergency situation. The brakes also act automatically as a parking brake when the equipment is intentionally deenergized.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The loading, hauling and dumping and machinery and equipment (previously RIN: 1219-AA19) standards are part of the overall review of regulations dealing with metal and nonmetal mines and mills. As a result of consideration of the public rulemaking records relating to both the machinery and equipment and loading, hauling and dumping standards, the Agency reorganized the standards to more accurately and clearly identify the hazards. A combined final rule of these two sections was published in April 1988.

Legal Authority: 30 USC 811

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 55; 30 CFR 56; 30 CFR 70; 30 CFR 71

Abstract: The Agency is developing a NPRM which would replace an incorporation by reference with updated permissible exposure limits which are specifically applicable to the hazards encountered in metal and nonmetal mining. The proposal would solicit comment on which means of control would provide the necessary protection from airborne contaminants. Standards for use of respiratory protective equipment would replace an outdated incorporation by reference. The proposal would also update asbestos standards. Other issues being considered are: requirements for exposure monitoring and precautions for handling restricted-use chemicals; notification of workers of overexposures; and access to exposure records.

enabling the Agency to deal directly with the narrower issues of the revision of the Z tables. No costs or benefits have yet been estimated.

1487. CARCINOGEN POLICY*Significance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Authority: 29 USC 653; 29 USC 655; 29 USC 657CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1990Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Carcinogen Policy describes the criteria and procedures OSHA will use to identify, classify, and then regulate carcinogens. The Policy also establishes a process for screening chemicals and for setting priorities for potential rulemaking activities. The Carcinogen Policy explicitly recognizes that periodic revisions are necessary in order to incorporate the latest scientific advances and techniques into the regulatory process. Hence, it is time for OSHA to review and modernize the carcinogen policy. The original standard was issued in 1980 before the Supreme Court "benzene" decision on significant risk. Thereafter, a final rule deleting provisions of the Carcinogen Policy that were inconsistent with the benzene decision was published on 1/19/81 (46 FR 4889). A proposal was published on 1/23/81 (46 FR 7402) to permit alternatives to the risk analysis section of the carcinogen policy to be addressed. The proposal was withdrawn on 3/27/81 (46 FR 19000). An advance notice of proposed rulemaking was published on 1/5/82 (47 FR 187) with comments due by 4/5/82. That document (cont'd)

Abstract: One of the greatest hazards associated with concrete and masonry structures in the construction industry is the collapse or failure of the entire structure or its forms and shoring. The catastrophic failures of recent years indicated that revision of the existing standard applicable to such construction operations was necessary. The previous concrete standard contained outdated referenced standards, gaps in coverage, redundant provisions, and provisions which needed clarification. The referenced standards have been updated and placed in the body of the standard. New standards have been added to cover precast concrete erection and masonry wall construction. The provisions that were identified as being redundant have been removed and the ambiguous provisions have been clarified. However, the record will be reopened to allow information and evidence obtained from the investigation of a recent major accident to be included in the record pertaining to lift-slab operations. Revised lift-slab rules will then be proposed.

Abstract: On June 17, 1986, OSHA issued revised standards governing occupational exposure to asbestos, tremolite, anthophyllite, and actinolite in general industry and in the construction industry. These standards replaced OSHA's previous asbestos standard promulgated in 1972. Since the issuance of the revised standards OSHA has received letters and petitions, from both rulemaking participants and nonparticipants, that contain additional comments, assertions and information that the rulemaking record may not fully reflect. These letters and petitions concern the appropriateness of regulating nonasbestiform tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite as presenting the same health risk as asbestos.

OSHA has granted a temporary stay of the effective dates of the current standards as they apply to nonasbestiform varieties of tremolite, anthophyllite and actinolite. This action was taken, in part, to enable the Agency to review letters and memoranda from the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health as well as submissions by the R.T. Abstract: OSHA's policy concerning the use of engineering controls and respirators was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief in 1981. Current OSHA regulations require that employers implement feasible engineering controls to maintain air contaminant concentrations in the workplace at or below the prescribed permissible exposure limits. The use of respirators is permitted only in those cases where engineering controls are not feasible, not yet installed, or not adequate. This policy has been criticized as being inflexible, not cost-effective, and often unnecessary for employee health protection. OSHA believes that any changes to the policy for use of engineering controls must be closely coordinated with revisions in the respiratory protection regulations (29 CFR 1910.134). This rulemaking does not address the assessment and reduction of any absolute existing risks, but rather addresses the possible change in risk abatement associated with the use of respirators instead of engineering controls.

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1000, (Table Z-2); 29 CFR 1910.1028

Abstract: OSHA has amended its standard for occupational exposure to benzene by reducing the permissible exposure limit from 10 parts benzene per million parts of air (10 ppm) to an eight-hour time-weighted average of 1 ppm and by adding appropriate industrial hygiene and medical surveillance provisions necessary for the protection of employee health. This action is based on OSHA's determination that the amendments are needed to reduce the risk of leukemia and other adverse health effects associated with occupational exposure to benzene.

OSHA published its final amendment to the standard on September 11, 1987. Due to technical problems associated with the completion of a detailed study of feasibility in barge and tanker cleaning and repair operations, however, OSHA exempted these operations from certain provisions of the standard. OSHA intends to issue a proposal to amend the benzene standard which will address the factors specific to the barge and tanker cleaning and repair industry.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.266, (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Logging is a very hazardous industry. It has an incidence rate nearly twice that of manufacturing, and reflecting the seriousness of the injuries incurred, a lost workday rate nearly four times as high. The purpose of the standard will be to protect workers from the ever-present hazards of chain saw operation, falling objects (trees, branches), rolling or sliding logs, falls from trees, and materials handling accidents. At present there is no OSHA standard specifically applicable to logging in general. There is a standard, 29 CFR 1910.266, applicable only to pulpwood logging; however, pulpwood logging is estimated to account for less than half of the logging activity in the United States. Development of a national OSHA standard addressing all types of logging will provide coverage for those loggers not now protected.

The new regulation will provide coverage where there is no approved state regulation and will set a minimum safety level for those states that chose to develop a state regulation.

Abstract: The purpose of this regulatory action would be to update and revise a standard first issued in 1960. The current language in many instances addresses the hazards to cargo handling involving methods long since abandoned, and fails to address the serious hazards of newer methods. Because much of the current standard is out of date, there are problems with compliance. These revised requirements will provide both employers and employees with a blueprint for effective and safe workpractices in the cargo handling industry. No alternative other than revision is contemplated. The annual cost of the revision is expected to be minimal — less than five million dollars.

Abstract: 4,4'-Methylenedianiline (MDA) is a chemical used primarily to manufacture methylenediphenyl diisocyanate, which is used to make polyurethane foams and elastomers. Recent scientific data indicate that MDA is a carcinogen in animals and a potential carcinogen in humans. In 1983, OSHA and the Environmental Protection Agency participated in a joint effort to publish an advance notice of proposed rulemaking to solicit information on MDA production and use, estimates of environmental and occupational exposure, and studies of its toxic and carcinogenic effects. EPA evaluated the data received in response to the advance notice and concluded that the chemical presents an unreasonable risk of injury to the health of exposed workers. Under the provisions of section 9(a) of the Toxic Substances Control Act, EPA referred MDA to OSHA for action. OSHA responded to the EPA referral on 2/26/86. OSHA established a mediated rulemaking advisory committee composed of interested parties from labor, industry and government to assist the agency in developing a proposed standard. The Committee completed its work in June 1987.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing standards for eye, face, head, and foot protection reference outdated national consensus standards which have been updated and improved. Consequently, criteria for personal protective equipment for eye, face, head, and foot would be revised to reflect improved developments in these types of equipment. This would allow the use of better personal protective equipment and would result in improved employee protection from eye, face, head, and foot hazards.

Abstract: On May 20, 1986, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) issued a report to OSHA, under Section 9(a) of the Toxic Substances Control Act, stating that EPA has reasonable basis to conclude that the risk of injury to worker health from exposure to four glycol ethers during their manufacture, processing and use is unreasonable, and that this risk may be prevented or reduced to a significant extent by OSHA regulatory action. EPA gave OSHA 180 days in which to respond to its report. OSHA published its response on December 11, 1986, stating that OSHA had preliminarily concluded that occupational exposures to the subject glycol ethers at the current OSHA permissible exposure limits may present significant risks to the health of workers. OSHA announced that it would begin rulemaking proceedings for these chemicals.

Part 1919, entitled "Gear Certification," implements requirements located in each of OSHA's maritime standards which cover work carried out within the Federal maritime jurisdiction. Changes in the design and composition of cargo handling gear which have evolved since these rules were last amended (1969) provided questions as to the efficacy of the current rules. Additionally, the Agency sought comments that would suggest ways in which the administrative function of the accreditation program could be improved. Comment period ended: August 5, 1987.

Abstract: In July 1985, OSHA was petitioned by the United Automobile, Aerospace and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW) to issue a hazard alert; issue an emergency temporary standard; and to begin work on a new permanent standard for methylene chloride (DCM). This request was based on information obtained from the Environmental Protection Agency and the National Toxicology Program indicating that DCM is an animal carcinogen and may have the potential to cause cancer in humans. In November 1986, OSHA notified the UAW that its petition had been granted, in part, and denied, in part. Specifically, OSHA has issued a set of guidelines for controlling occupational exposure to DCM and has decided to proceed with rulemaking to develop a new permanent standard. OSHA denied that portion of the petition requesting the issuance of an emergency temporary standard.

Abstract: OSHA promulgated a final rule on August 24, 1987, that extended the protections of its Hazard Communication Standard (HCS) from the manufacturing sector to all other workplaces where employees are exposed to hazardous chemicals. The HCS requires covered employers to establish hazard communication programs for their employees, including labels on containers, material safety data sheets, and training programs. As the final rule was published pursuant to a court order without having published a NPRM, OSHA invited additional comment on the final rule for 60 days. The Agency is now proposing some modifications to the final rule to address issues of concern.

BLOODBORNE INFECTIOUS DISEASES*Significance: Regulatory ProgramLegal Authority: 29 USC 655 et seqCFR Citation: 29 CFR Not yet determinedLegal Deadline: NoneAbstract: Many health-care workers are exposed to blood and body fluids from patients who have active bloodborne infections or are carriers of these infections. Such exposure presents a potential risk of disease for the health-care workers. One such disease, hepatitis B, has been shown to present a substantially increased risk for health-care workers. Data received by OSHA indicate that of the approximately 300,000 cases of hepatitis B diagnosed in the U.S. each year, approximately 6.0 percent, or 18,000 cases, are among health-care workers. It has been estimated that 222-265 health-care workers die each year as a result of hepatitis B and associated complications. About half of the nation's five million health-care workers are at increased risk from exposure to bloodborne infectious diseases. The highest risks are experienced by emergency room workers, dialysis unit workers, operating room personnel, intensive care unit workers and blood bank employees. In its July 1, 1987, response to the petitioners, OSHA stated that issuance of an emergency standard was not warranted, but that exposure to cadmium at levels permitted under the current standard represented a significant risk to worker health which would be addressed through section 6(b) rulemaking procedures. Abstract: Standards in 29 CFR Part 1910, Subpart H, which address the storage, handling and use of hazardous materials, such as compressed gases, acetylene, hydrogen, oxygen, liquified petroleum gases, and flammable and combustible liquids, will be revised. This regulatory action will provide a new approach to the revision of Subpart H and will occur in three phases in an expanded timeframe. The three phases will be (1) Process Hazards Management, (2) Flammable and Compressed Gases, and, (3) Hazardous Liquids. The first phase of the proposed action is intended to better protect employees from unexpected releases of significant quantities of dangerous substances. The remaining phases are intended to simplify, clarify and consolidate standards on hazardous materials and assist employers and employees in general industry to better understand and better focus on the hazards inherent in the use, handling, and storage of such materials.

Abstract: This regulatory action will complete the consolidation and updating of Parts 1915 and 1910 by providing shipyard employees with coverage under one comprehensive OSHA standard. This revision will involve the promulgation of 16 maritime subparts and their 1910 counterparts. Its completion will relieve shipyard owners from the burden of having to comply with two sets of rules that are complex, prescriptive, confusing and, in some cases, conflicting. OSHA will establish an Advisory Committee to assist the agency in reviewing and revising these subparts. Experts from government, industry, unions and the states will be asked to work with OSHA on this project. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing OSHA standards are designed to protect employees who are engaged in work involving exposure to only a few toxic chemicals during relatively standardized, continuous or repetitive processes. In contrast, laboratory workers are exposed to a multitude of toxic substances under frequently changing or unpredictable conditions. During this rulemaking, OSHA will examine whether prudent work practices and protective equipment, chosen for the specific facility and task, are more effective, feasible and economical for laboratory work than adhering to OSHA's current substance-specific standards. Accordingly, OSHA has proposed a special performance-oriented work practices standard that, if promulgated, would apply to laboratory workers and would contain provisions specifically designed for laboratory conditions.

Abstract: Recent scientific studies have reported that ethylene dibromide causes cancer when administered orally, by inhalation and by skin application in laboratory animals. In addition, other studies have shown the chemical to be a mutagen, teratogen and testicular toxin in experimental animals. On the basis of these reports, OSHA has determined that its current permissible exposure limit of 20 ppm does not provide exposed workers adequate protection against cancer and other adverse health effects. A proposed standard for ethylene dibromide was published 10/07/83 (43 FR 45956). Public hearings were held in February 1984. OSHA is currently in the process of decisionmaking on the provisions to be included in the final standard.

Abstract: Standards are currently under review for the second part (Subpart S of Part 1910) of OSHA's electrical standard which would establish a performance-oriented standard for electrical safety-related work practices to complement the existing electrical installation standards. The proposed standard includes requirements for work performed on or near exposed energized and deenergized parts of electrical equipment and includes requirements for both the safe use of the electrical equipment as well as the use of personal protection devices.

Abstract: The present standard, which requires positive engagement of a powered platform with a building face to provide stabilization, may need to be revised because many variance designs have been submitted which do not provide positive engagement of the platform, yet claim equal stability. The agency believes there may be merit to this claim. The proposal provides flexibility in compliance through performance-oriented provisions as alternatives to positive engagement. It would also expand the scope of the current standard to include requirements covering additional suspension equipment, fall protection, and employee training.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.147. (New)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed standard will fill a major gap in our current regulations which now depend for enforcement on the general duty clause, 5(a)(1). It will apply to those situations where the unexpected energization, start up or the release of stored energy could cause injury to employees. Providing comprehensive and uniform control procedures is also expected to reduce significantly the potential for injury and death of employees because the hazards targeted for control exist in virtually every workplace. Further, the proposed standard will respond to the concerns of organized labor who petitioned OSHA in 1979 and again in 1982 for regulatory action to protect employees and to the American National Standards Institute's petition for OSHA to adopt its consensus standard ANSI Z244.1-1982. Regulatory options involve developing a comprehensive standard covering all potentially hazardous energy sources or limiting the scope and application to those certain machines or industries that are causing most of the injuries.

Abstract: Public Law 99-499 requires the Secretary of Labor to promulgate a final standard for Hazardous Waste Operations and Emergency Response by October 17, 1987. The law requires the proposed rule to address eleven areas: site analysis, training, medical surveillance, protective equipment, engineering controls, maximum exposure limits, informational programs, handling and labeling, new technology programs, decontamination procedures, and emergency response. The agency has developed a Preliminary Regulatory Impact Analysis which is available in the docket. The analysis estimates that the benefits are significant and that annualized costs are $71 million for training, $17 million for medical surveillance, $12 million for decontamination, $11 million for protection suits and $37 million for other requirements. OSHA held public hearings in Washington, D.C. and Seattle, Washington to enhance public comment and participation in this rulemaking.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In 1972, OSHA promulgated permissible exposure limits (PELs) for a number of toxic substances, pursuant to authority granted by section 6(a) of the Act, which allowed OSHA (for a limited period) to adopt existing Federal standards or industry consensus standards as enforceable OSHA standards. Accordingly, the lists of toxic substances now codified at 29 CFR 1910.1000, Tables Z-1 and Z-3, were Federal standards adopted under the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act, which, in turn, were adopted from the American Conference of Governmental Industrial Hygienists (ACGIH) Threshold Limit Values (TLVs) for 1968. The substances listed at 29 CFR 1910.1000, Table Z-2, were adopted from American National Standards Institute standards. Industrial experience, new developments in control technology, and scientific data acquired since 1968 have led the ACGIH to make changes in its TLVs over the years. Many of the TLVs have been lowered, and limits for additional chemicals have been established. During this period, OSHA has promulgated revised standards for toxic substances on a substance-by-substance basis. This process, however, has not kept up with (Cont'd)

Legal Deadline: Final, Judicial, November 28, 1988.

Abstract: On December 11, 1981 (46 FR 60758), OSHA published a Revised Statement of Reasons concerning the feasibility of compliance with paragraph (e)(1) of the standard for occupational exposure to lead, which had been promulgated in 1978. In this revised statement, OSHA stated that it could not reach a conclusion regarding feasibility, on the basis of the existing rulemaking record, for eight specific industry sectors: lead chromate pigments, lead chemicals, nonferrous foundries, brass and bronze ingot production, secondary copper smelting leaded steel, shipbuilding and ship repair, stevedoring, and battery breaking separate from secondary smelting, and that in addition, it wished to reexamine the applicability of the lead standard to the stevedoring industry. OSHA requested that the record (which was under review by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit) be remanded for supplementary administrative proceedings. The Court granted OSHA's December 1981 request on March 31, 1987, and remanded the record to OSHA for further administrative proceedings to determine the feasibility of section (e)(1) for the nine industry sectors OSHA had (Cont'd)

Significance: Regulatory Program

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.20

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The existing record access rule was promulgated in May 1980. The rule requires employers to preserve and maintain exposure and medical records pertinent to employee exposure to toxic substances, and to ensure access to these records by employees, designated employee representatives and OSHA. As a result of numerous requests and suggestions for changes to the standard, OSHA published a proposal to revise the standard in 1982. OSHA intends to publish soon a final rule that resolves many of the issues raised in the 1982 proposal. This regulation will be similar to the regulation promulgated in 1980 with certain exceptions relating to: (1) first-aid records and medical records of short-term employees; (2) the microfilm storage of employee X-rays; (3) employer trade secrets; (4) employee exposure record requirements for other records; and (5) unconsented access to employee exposure records by union representatives.

Legal Deadline: Final, Judicial, September 6, 1988. The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit ordered OSHA's reconsideration of the STEL issue be completed within 60 days of the issuance of the mandate (Cont'd)

Abstract: In June 1986, OSHA promulgated revised standards governing exposure to asbestos in general industry and construction. OSHA reduced the 8-hour Time Weighted Average (TWA) Permissible Exposure Limit (PEL) to 0.2 f/cc, but did not issue a short term exposure limit (STEL). OSHA's principal reason for not issuing an excursion limit was that the rulemaking record failed to show a dose-rate effect. Subsequently, in July 1986, the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, in reviewing the EtO standard, held that OSHA may not base its determination to not issue a STEL on the lack of a "dose-rate effect" and that the "OSH Act compels the Agency to adopt a STEL if the record shows that it would further reduce a significant health risk and is feasible to implement." To conform to this judicial decision OSHA plans to amend the Asbestos standards by the issuance of an appropriate excursion limit for all workplaces affected by the revised Asbestos standards.

Abstract: Executive Order 12532 of September 9, 1985 required U.S. firms operating in South Africa to take good faith measures with respect to certain fair labor standards. A final rule was promulgated for this purpose after receiving public comments. The requirements of this Executive Order were later codified in the Comprehensive Anti-Apartheid Act of October 2, 1986, and amendments to the regulations were promulgated as a final rule on October 22, 1986. The first annual review of the labor practices of U.S. firms was published in September 1987. The Department of State revised the questionnaire after the first report was published. The Department will review the regulations and questionnaire in the last quarter of 1988 after the second report is issued in September 1988.

Abstract: The Foreign Missions Act Amendments of 1983 amended the Diplomatic Relations Act of 1978 and the Foreign Missions Act to enforce more effectively a requirement that persons connected with foreign missions carry liability insurance against risks arising from the operation in the U.S. of automobiles, vessels or aircraft by persons entitled to diplomatic or consular immunity. The Department issues and enforces pertinent regulations with the aim of ensuring that the objectives of this program are achieved. The regulations are designed to carry out the obligations of the U.S. to foreign diplomatic and consular missions, to induce concessions for U.S. diplomatic and consular missions abroad, and to protect the U.S. public against uninsured foreign drivers. The expected potential benefits to society will greatly outweigh potential costs. We continue our analysis and discussions to ensure that regulatory mechanisms chosen maximize net benefits and minimize net costs. We seek to set priorities for our regulatory goals and objectives to maximize aggregate net benefits to society. In that connection, the liability insurance regulations have first priority.

Abstract: The Foreign Missions Act creates certain authorities for the Secretary of State relating to the regulation of foreign missions, diplomatic, consular, and international organizations. Exercise of other authorities in the Foreign Missions Act could affect the location of premises of foreign missions. Exercise of authority in the Diplomatic Relations Act, 22 USC 254(a) et seq., as amended by Title VI of PL 98-164, will have an impact on the acquisition of liability insurance coverage for the operation of motor vehicles, vessels, and aircraft by personnel of foreign missions, and could in certain situations, subject foreign missions to surcharges or fees. The regulations under consideration would provide procedures for exercise of these authorities. These regulations are at the stage of preliminary consideration. ## Agenda

Background

Improvement of government regulations is a prime goal of the Reagan Administration. There should be no more regulations than necessary, and those that are issued should be simpler, more comprehensible, and less burdensome. Regulations should not be issued without appropriate involvement of the public; once issued, they should be periodically reviewed and revised, as needed, to assure that they continue to meet the needs for which they originally were designed.

To help the Department of Transportation ("Department") achieve these goals, and in accordance with Executive Order 12291 ("Federal Regulation"; 46 FR 13193; February 19, 1981) and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures (44 FR 11034; February 26, 1979), the Department prepares a semiannual Regulations Agenda for publication in the Federal Register. The agenda summarizes all current and projected rulemaking, reviews of existing regulations and completed actions of the Department. These are matters on which action has begun or is projected during the succeeding twelve months or such longer period as may be anticipated or for which action has been completed since the last agenda.

The agendas are based on reports submitted by the initiating offices in January and July each year. After these reports are consolidated for, and reviewed by, the Department Regulations Council, the Department's Regulations Agenda is prepared and published in the Federal Register. The Department's last agenda was published in the Federal Register on April 25, 1988 (53 FR 14039). The next one is scheduled for publication in the Federal Register in April 1989.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

In 1980, Congress passed the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA), Pub. L. 96-354, which requires the designation of those regulations for which a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared, i.e., those regulations that would have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. A Regulatory Flexibility Analysis is required for a rulemaking which, in the heading "Small Entities Affected," indicates an effect on small businesses, governmental jurisdictions, or organizations. If a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared for a particular rulemaking, that fact also will be noted under the heading "Analysis."

The RFA also requires that each year the Department publish a list of those regulations that have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and are to be reviewed under the Act during the succeeding twelve months. The agenda includes those regulations to be reviewed under the RFA or those for which review has been concluded since the last agenda. However, it should be noted that, after a preliminary assessment of the regulations listed for RFA review, it may be found that the regulations, in fact, do not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and a full RFA review will be unnecessary.

Regulatory Impact Analysis

A preliminary and final Regulatory Impact Analysis is required for each proposed and final regulation, respectively that

(1) Is likely to result in:

(a) An annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more;

DOT

(b) A major effect on the general economy in terms of costs, consumer prices, or production;

(c) A major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individual industries; Federal, State, or local government agencies; or geographic regions;

(d) Significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets; or

(2) The Secretary or head of the initiating office has determined requires such an analysis.

Definitions

The agenda covers all rules and regulations of the Department, including those that establish conditions for financial assistance. The following definitions are provided for ease in understanding the information in this document.

(1) Initiating office means an operating administration or other organizational element within the Department, the head of which is authorized by law or delegation to issue regulations or to formulate regulations for issuance by the Secretary.

(2) Significant regulation means a regulation that is not an emergency regulation and that in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, or the Secretary, or the Deputy Secretary

(a) Is a major regulation;

(b) Concerns a matter on which there is substantial public interest or controversy;

(c) Has a major impact on another operating administration or other parts of the Department or other Federal Agency;

(d) Has a substantial effect on State and local governments;

(e) Has a substantial impact on a major transportation safety problem;

(f) Initiates a substantial regulatory program or change in policy;

(g) Is substantially different from international requirements or standards; or

(h) Otherwise involves important Department policy.

(3) Major regulation means a significant regulation for which a

Regulatory Impact Analysis is required to be prepared.

(4) Emergency regulation means (a) a regulation that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, circumstances require to be issued without notice and opportunity for public comment or made effective in less than 30 days after publication in the Federal Register; or (b) is governed by short-term statutory or judicial deadlines.

(5) Nonsignificant regulation means a regulation that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, is neither a significant nor an emergency regulation.

Explanation of Information on the Agenda

The format for this agenda is required by Office of Management and Budget Bulletin No. 86-16 (July 2, 1986).

First, the agenda is divided by initiating offices. Then, in accordance with the OMB Bulletin, for each initiating office the agenda is divided into four categories: (1) Prerule stage, (2) proposed rule stage, (3) final rule stage, and (4) completed actions. For each entry, the agenda provides the following information: (1) The "significance" of the action (i.e., whether it is significant because it is on the Regulatory Program or because of agency priority; or whether it is nonsignificant or routine and frequent); (2) a short descriptive title; (3) the legal basis for the action being taken or the regulation being reviewed; (4) the related regulatory citation in the Code of Federal Regulations; (5) an indication of any legal deadline and, if so, for what type of action (e.g., NPRM, final rule); (6) an abstract of the review or the proposed or final regulation; (7) a timetable, including the earliest expected date for a decision on whether to issue the proposed or final regulation, or complete the review and determine the corrective action to be taken. (The action taken can be revocation or revision of the regulation, or it can be a determination that no regulatory action is necessary because the regulation is found to be achieving its goals and the goals and objectives of Executive Order 12291 and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures.); (8) an indication as to whether the rulemaking will affect small entities and/or levels of government and which categories of small entities or governments will be impacted; (9) if there is information that does not fit in the other categories, it will be included under a separate heading, entitled "Additional Information"; (10) a listing, where determined, of any analyses an initiating office will prepare or has prepared for the rulemaking document; e.g., a Regulatory Impact Analysis or Evaluation, an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS), a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis, or an Urban Impact Analysis. (It should be noted that, even though a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not required for some items on the agenda, the Department requires an economic analysis for all of its regulations. This economic analysis is contained in the Regulatory Evaluation if a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not prepared.); (11) an agency contact office or official who can provide further information, including advice on how to obtain documents referenced in the agenda; and (12) a Regulation Identifier Number (RIN) assigned to identify an individual rulemaking in the agenda and facilitate tracing further action on the issue in the Federal Register which may occur between agenda publications. (Departmental rulemaking documents published in the Federal Register now contain RIN numbers.)

For nonsignificant regulations issued routinely and frequently as a part of an established body of technical requirements (such as the Federal Aviation Administration's Airspace Rules) to keep those requirements operationally current, only the general category of the regulations, the identity of a contact office or official, and an indication of the expected number of regulations are included; individual regulations are not listed.

If a regulatory docket number has already been established, it may be provided under the "Additional Information" heading. If a member of the public desires further information regarding a particular proposal or regulation, reference should be made to this docket number.

In the "Timetable" column, abbreviations are used to indicate the particular documents being considered for issuance by that date. ANPRM stands for Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, SNPRM for Supplemental Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, NPRM for Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, and FR for Final Rule. Listing a future date in this column is not an indication that a proposed or a final rule will be issued on that date; it is the earliest date on which a decision is expected to be made on whether to issue the document listed. Submittal of any proposed or final rule to the Office of Management and Budget for review, under Executive Order 12291, must follow such a decision. For major rules, this review could take 60 days or more. If any document is issued, publication in the Federal Register would follow within a few days. In addition, these dates are based on current schedules. Information received subsequent to the issuance of this agenda could result in a decision not to take regulatory action or in changes to proposed publication dates. For example, the need for further evaluation could result in a later publication date; evidence of a greater need for the regulation could result in an earlier publication date.

Finally, a dot (●) preceding an entry indicates that the entry appears in the agenda for the first time.

Mailing Lists for Regulatory Documents

To assist the public in obtaining regulatory documents issued within the Department of Transportation, an Appendix A has been included in this document. The appendix contains instructions on how to be placed on mailing lists for, or to obtain, copies of regulatory documents, including the Department's Semiannual Regulations Agenda, issued by the operating administrations of the Department and the Office of the Secretary. There is no charge for this service; however, because of the costs involved, the number of copies of a document forwarded to an individual requestor may be limited. Persons already on mailing lists for particular documents within the Department will remain on those lists and should not reapply.

By following the instructions specified in the appendix, a person can be placed on a mailing list for future copies of the Department's Regulations Agenda, which will be updated and published in the Federal Register every year during April and October. By using the agenda, individuals can determine which Notice or Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, to be issued by elements of the Department, is of interest to them. Then, using the instructions in the appendix, such persons also can be placed on a mailing list to ensure that, after the document of interest is issued, a copy will be mailed to them for their review and comment. In this way, individuals will be relieved of the burden of having to review the Federal Register, perhaps on a daily basis. The Department expects that this process will ensure that those people placed on mailing lists will receive early notice so that their views on the document can be adequately prepared and presented within the established comment period.

General Rulemaking Contact Persons

To assist persons desiring to obtain general information concerning the rulemaking process within the Department's operating administrations, an Appendix B has been added to the agenda. This appendix sets forth the addresses and the telephone numbers of the persons who can respond quickly to requests for general rulemaking information. Please note, however, that questions related to particular rulemaking actions should still be referred to the contact person listed with the particular rulemaking on the agenda.

Public Rulemaking Dockets

To facilitate the inspection of docket files and the submission of comments by the public, an Appendix C sets forth the addresses and working hours for the Rules Docket for each operating administration.

Request for Comments

Agenda

Our agenda is intended primarily for the use of the public. Since its inception, we have made modifications and refinements that we believe provide the public with more helpful information as well as make the agenda easier to use. We would also like you, the public, to make suggestions or comments on how the agenda could be further improved. For example, do you find the information presented in an easily understandable manner? Do you find it easy to follow a regulation's development from agenda to agenda? Do you find that the format for setting out the information enables you to use the agenda easily? Do you find that the presentation of the information in the agenda is clearly explained in the preamble to the agenda? Your responses to these questions or any other comments or suggestions you may have should be sent to Neil R. Eisner, whose address appears above.

Reviews

In an effort to comply further with the spirit of Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, we are also seeking suggestions on existing regulations that should be included in our review of existing regulations; that is, which existing regulations issued by an operating administration of the Department or the Office of the Secretary do you believe need to be reviewed to determine whether they should be revised or revoked? The Department is particularly interested in obtaining information on requirements that have a "significant economic impact on small entities" and therefore must be reviewed under the Regulatory Flexibility Act. If you have any suggested regulations, please send them, along with your explanation of why they should be reviewed, to the concerned operating administration or the Office of the Secretary, at the appropriate address noted in the "Addresses" paragraph above.

In accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act, comments are specifically invited on regulations that are targeted for review under the RFA. Those comments should be addressed to the "contact" person of the operating administration involved, at the appropriate address noted in the "Addresses" paragraph above.

Purpose

The Department is publishing this Regulations Agenda in the Federal Register to share with interested members of the public the Department's preliminary expectations regarding its future regulatory actions. This should enable the public to be more aware of the Department's regulatory activity. Knowledge of the nature and scope of this activity, as well as the specific proposals and reviews being considered, should result in more effective public participation in the Department's regulatory activity. For example, awareness of the dates when notices may be issued seeking public comment should allow appropriate planning and more efficient use of the comment period. By providing the expected date for a decision on whether to issue a final rule, the Department expects that more appropriate planning by those concerned with the regulation will also be possible. This publication in the Federal Register does not impose any binding obligation on the Department, or any of the offices within the Department, with regard to any specific item on the agenda. Regulatory action in addition to the items listed is not precluded. If further information is desired on any of the items listed in the agenda, the public is encouraged to contact the individual listed for the particular item. Additional information concerning the agenda, in general, or the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures may be obtained from Neil R. Eisner, whose address and telephone number appear above.

DOT

Issued in Washington, DC on September 24, 1988.

Jim Burnley,

Secretary of Transportation.

1552. + REVIEW OF DEPARTMENT-WIDE DRUG REGULATIONS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: Not yet determined

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department will review existing regulations to determine whether changes are necessary for each of the Modal Administrations' drug regulations. The Department seeks to address the use of drugs through its regulatory authority. The review will encompass each Model Administration's program. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1371; 49 USC 1372; 49 USC 1381

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Transamerica petitioned the CAB to investigate ways to protect consumers against service defaults by scheduled air carriers in domestic, overseas, and foreign air transportation. Transamerica suggested that the Board condition the award of operating authority to perform direct carrier scheduled service on air carriers developing a default protection plan. For foreign air travel, it suggested that the obligation be limited to outbound flights. The petitioner argued that prompt action is necessary in order to ensure continued public confidence in scheduled air service and to protect passengers from unnecessary financial hardship. DOT is considering what action should be taken on the petition.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1371; 49 USC 1372; 49 USC 1381

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This petition, filed by Mr. Theodore Harris, addresses the problem of airline passengers whose airline goes bankrupt after they bought their ticket but before they use it. The petitioner asks that airlines be required to protect such "unearned revenue" by escrowing it or by posting a bond in an amount equal to 150% of average unearned revenue. Exemptions could be granted to airlines which file evidence of ticket insurance plans or which enter into agreements with other airlines to accept the tickets of bankrupt carriers. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

DOT—OST

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 221.171; 14 CFR 221.173

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This petition proposes to amend the requirement that air carriers post cargo tariffs at stations, offices, and locations other than their principal office. The petitioners proposed to allow carriers to maintain a memorandum tariff at each location and have a toll-free number for shippers to obtain access to complete tariff information. Petitioners alleged that such a change would substantially reduce the cost and time burden of maintaining and continually updating voluminous files of current and past tariffs at each location. Further action on the proposal will depend on final action in RIN 2105-AB38.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1373; 49 USC 1386

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 372

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The reference to tariffs in the rule governing Overseas Military Personnel Charters (OMPC) has become obsolete, at least with respect to domestic air transportation. DOT—OST

Prerule Stage

Abstract: This rule would amend regulations to allow cargo tariffs which are within the zones established under 14 CFR 399.41 to be filed on 30 days' notice. There are two alternatives: either maintain the status quo (60 days' notice) or change cargo tariff filing regulations to 30 days' notice to be consistent with passenger tariff-filing requirements. Standardization of the regulatory tariff-filing requirements for both cargo and passenger tariffs would benefit the industry.

Abstract: The Civil Aeronautics Board was an independent agency; its rules have now been transferred to DOT, a cabinet department. This review will identify any CAB rules which are not consistent with Department or Administration regulatory criteria, such as those that impose an unnecessarily high cost or those with paperwork burdens that can be reduced or which involve a level of benefits or costs which are either higher or lower than necessary. The review will examine all alternatives, from strengthening a given rule to eliminating it. Nonregulatory approaches, including the supplying of information by the Government, or regulation by another level of government, will be also considered. The benefits and costs will be known only after these alternatives have been developed.

1562. + COMMERCIAL SPACE TRANSPORTATION: LIABILITY REQUIREMENTS FOR COMMERCIAL SPACE LAUNCH ACTIVITIES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 98-575, Sec 15(c) to 16 Commercial Space Launch Act

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Persons authorized to conduct commercial launch activities by a license issued by OCST are required to have in effect at least that amount of third-party liability insurance prescribed by DOT for the licensed activity. In addition, launch firms must secure an amount of insurance, or offer other assurance, that will be adequate to protect the Government when its property or personnel are directly involved in the conduct of commercial launch activities. Rulemaking sets out the criteria OCST will consider in setting the appropriate amount of third-party liability and other insurance firms subject to its authority must carry.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Department is reviewing its regulation establishing a minority business enterprise (MBE) program in its financial assistance programs (49 CFR Part 23). This regulation has been controversial, is of interest to most DOT grant recipients and contractors, and affects the operations of all DOT financial assistance programs. Section 106(c) of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 (STURAA) extended and modified the program as applied to FHWA and UMTA; similar legislation applied the same requirements to the FAA. The Department issued a final rule to make the STURAA changes in October 1987; a similar rule for FAA programs was published in May 1988.
The Department intends subsequently to issue an NPRM that would propose further changes in the regulation.

Abstract: The Department is proposing

Abstract: This regulation would implement the 1978 amendments to section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 which made its prohibition of discrimination on the ground of handicap applicable to the directly conducted programs of Federal agencies as well as to their financial assistance programs. The rule would apply to DOT facilities, personnel practices, and regulatory programs. It would be based on a model rule developed by the Department of Justice. The rule would also apply to DOT activities and functions transferred from the Civil Aeronautics Board after that agency's "sunset." A CAB NPRM that was being developed on this subject will be subsumed in this project. A draft NPRM is now being reviewed by the Department of Justice.

Final Rule Stage

Office of the Secretary (OST)

1568. + NONDISCRIMINATION ON THE BASIS OF HANDICAP (AIR TRAVEL)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 794; Section 404(a) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, as amended

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 27; 14 CFR 382

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, January 30, 1987.

Abstract: The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) had a regulation providing protection of the rights of handicapped air travellers. Based on recent Congressional action, DOT began enforcing this regulation on January 1, 1985. The Supreme Court's decision in U.S. Department of Transportation v. Paralyzed Veterans of America held that Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 does not apply to nonsubsidized air carriers. This decision left the existing regulation intact. The Air Carrier Access Act of 1988 directed DOT to publish new regulations prohibiting disability-based discrimination in air travel. The Department will use comments received in response to its August 1988 information notice on issues affecting blind passengers as part of the record for this rulemaking. The Department convened an advisory committee to pursue the rulemaking through a negotiated process. The negotiations have concluded and an NPRM has been published.

1569. + ELECTRONIC FILING OF TARIFFS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1373

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 221

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This project is examining whether conversion from a paper document system to a computerized system of filing and monitoring air carrier tariffs can reduce paper flow, speed up processing, and allow the industry to utilize computer and technology to communicate with DOT. The alternative is to maintain the current paper tariffs system. Potential savings to the industry may be greater than to the Government, since airlines already utilize automated fare and rate systems. In addition, airlines may be able to implement changes faster, thus responding more quickly to market conditions, and may be less burdened with the cost of producing and transmitting paper documents. The Department may reduce paper flow, experience savings in processing time and staffing, and improve the accuracy and control of tariff data. In order to assure that users' needs are taken into consideration and that the private sector is involved to the maximum extent in the design, implementation, and operation of such a system, the Department established an Advisory Committee to make continuing recommendations on technical, operational, and policy objectives of the electronic tariff system.

Abstract: The CAB proposed new charter rules for direct and indirect air carriers. The proposed rules retain the financial protections of existing rules for direct air carriers while eliminating rules restricting the types of groups (such as "affinity" or "single-entity") to whom charters may be sold. The proposal would also retain a security instrument and depository system for indirect air carriers, along with contract rules for public protection. The proposal also highlights depository bank and travel agent responsibilities in handling passenger funds. The proposal replaces one made earlier. DOT is considering what action should be taken. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

1574. ● + POSTING OF TARIFFS – NOTICE OF CONTRACT OF CARRIAGE

Significance: Agency PriorityLegal Authority: 49 USC 1373CFR Citation: 14 CFR 221Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: DOT is proposing to allow carriers an alternative to the current requirement that they post their entire tariffs for passenger and cargo foreign air transportation in printed hard copy at each ticket sales location. Carriers would be able to provide more useful information to consumers using summaries, computer terminals, and printed copies of tariff information. This proposal would permit international carriers the option of making their tariff information available to consumers in a manner similar to that currently used to provide notice of incorporated contract terms to airline passengers traveling in domestic air transportation.

Specifically, it would permit the airlines to satisfy the posting requirements quickly and economically by largely eliminating the costly and onerous medium of paper at their sales locations. The airlines would be able to furnish information on fares, rates and rules subject to frequent change through the use of electronic transmissions to display terminals at their sales locations. This process would also allow airlines to provide consumers with printed copies of this information upon request. Only those rules subject to infrequent

Few comments were received on this NPRM, and a final regulation was never published. The Department reviewed the existing regulation to determine if changes were needed. However, because of the program established by Public Law 95-507, these proposed rules became unnecessary, and were never finalized. Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would end the current practice of prescribing fixed rates for the transportation of mail by air, and in its place establish zones for each category of mail. Each zone would be defined by maximum and minimum rates prescribed by DOT, and airlines would be free to contract with the Postal Service for the carriage of mail at any price within the zone. The rule is now moot with regard to domestic mail rates except in Alaska.

AIR TRAVELERS: AGE DISCRIMINATION*Significance: NonsignificantLegal Authority: 42 USC 6102CFR Citation: 14 CFR 376, (Proposed)Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will prohibit discrimination against air travelers on the basis of age and implement the Age Discrimination Act of 1975. A final rule was adopted by the CAB on April 10, 1980, and was forwarded to the Secretary of HHS for approval, as required by the Age Discrimination Act. The rule was approved by HHS on July 13, 1984, with changes. However, these changes have not been incorporated. DOT is considering combining this rulemaking with a broader DOT age discrimination rule on which work is now under way.

Alternatively, the Board proposed to declare it to be an unfair and deceptive practice to divert a passenger without arranging and paying for alternate transportation to the destination airport named on the passenger's ticket. Abstract: The American Association of Airport Executives, the Airport Operators Council International and the Air Transport Association of America petitioned the CAB to simplify its counter-sign requirements. Presently, airlines are required to display four different consumer protection notices on their ticket counters. The petitioners alleged that the current notices are hard to read and, therefore, do not provide much notice to passengers. They proposed replacing the four notices with one simplified counter sign. The CAB adopted an NPRM that proposed a number of alternatives, such as a long and/or short notice, where the notices would be required to be posted and whether a smoking notice should be included. DOT is now considering what action to take in response to the notice and comments filed.

The high rate of casualties which have been experienced by these vessels has emphasized the need for specific regulations addressing the hazards inherent in their operations. These vessels support the offshore mineral and energy industry by performing a multitude of services such as dive support, painting, sandblasting and well servicing, among others. In performing these services, these vessels fall within the statutory definition of Offshore Supply Vessels (OSV) and are therefore subject to inspection as OSVs. The Coast Guard will consider using existing standards wherever possible, particularly those that have and are being applied to conventional OSVs. However, because of the unique design and operating characteristics exhibited by these liftboats, many of the current regulations used to inspect and certificate conventional OSVs are inadequate to ensure the safe operation of these vessels. The Coast Guard believes that development and enforcement of standards specifically addressing these (CONT)

The information in the ANPRM presents the Coast Guard's overall approach with respect to developing comprehensive standards for conventional offshore supply vessels as contrasted with liftboats and other nonconventional OSVs. On March 7, 1985, the Coast Guard published an ANPRM on Revision of the Regulations on Outer Continental Shelf Activities (50 FR 9290). Manufacturers would use the information to locate purchasers of boats and engines recalled for defects which create a substantial risk of personal injury to the public and for failures to comply with applicable regulations. Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 46 USC 4302; 49 CFR 1.46

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 183

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Rule proposes to amend current regulations on electrical systems for new boats by incorporating Underwriters Laboratories (UL) Standard 1426 by reference to replace UL Standard 83 in Subpart I of Part 83. The proposed rule would also delete a general reference to acceptable wire types in circuits of 50 volts or more. The intended effect is to recognize one of the most widely used wire types, UL boat cable, and to delete a very general reference that is not considered useful.

1695. ALTERNATIVE PROVISIONS FOR REINSPECTIONS OF OFFSHORE SUPPLY VESSELS IN FOREIGN PORTS (CGD 82-004A)

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 46 USC 3306; 33 USC 1321(j)(1)

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 91

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Coast Guard is proposing to amend the regulations concerning the reinspection of offshore supply vessels (OSVs) in foreign ports. Currently OSVs holding two year certificates of inspection are reinspected between the 10th and 14th month of the certificate's period. In recent years, more OSVs have been based overseas in remote locations. Vessel owners must reimburse the Coast Guard for inspector travel and per diem costs in connection with foreign inspections. This action would propose an alternative to the traditional Coast Guard mid-period reinspection. The benefits would be flexibility and financial savings to the OSV industry and more effective use of Coast Guard resources.

RIN: 2120-AB99

1734. + NOISE AND EMISSION STANDARDS FOR AIRCRAFT POWERED BY ADVANCED TURBOPROP (PROPFAN) ENGINES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1423; 49 USC 1431

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Part 36 prescribes noise standards for type certification of airplanes. A new generation of aircraft powered by prop-fan engines may present a noise problem that is not currently addressed by Part 36 in that en route noise at cruise altitude (25,000 to 30,000 ft) may require a new standard. This proposal would establish a new standard to control high altitude flyover noise from these new types of aircraft, and is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1423; 49 USC 1431

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Part 36 prescribes noise type certification standards for turbojet airplanes. This proposal would revise Part 36 so that new type-certificated supersonic aircraft would be required to meet Stage 3 noise levels. Action is considered significant because of the substantial public interest which may be generated on the issue.

1736. + FLIGHT ATTENDANT REQUIREMENTS DURING DEPLANING AND BOARDING

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354(a); 49 USC 1355; 49 USC 1421; 49 USC 1422; 49 USC 1427; 49 USC 106(g)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action proposes to revise the regulation dealing with the required number of flight attendants to clarify the original intent of the regulation. The current regulations are confusing and not clearly understood. The proposed amendments would clarify the number of flight attendants required when passengers are onboard an airplane, during specified periods, and proposals would allow for a reduced number of flight attendants onboard an airplane during specified periods. The proposals would specify the conditions to be met to reduce the number of flight attendants at these stops. Additionally, the proposals would allow other authorized persons to be substituted for the required flight attendants at these stops, and would clearly establish the requirements for training for those authorized persons. A proposed new rule would clarify where the required flight attendants and other persons must be located when they are onboard the airplane. This action is considered significant because of the substantial public interest.

Abstract: This notice will propose to revise the current requirements for passenger emergency exits and to adopt two new exit types into the regulations. These proposals are intended to provide more consistent standards with respect to exit types and quantities required for passenger seating configurations while retaining the same level of safety. This notice also will propose to reduce the maximum inflation time of an escape slide to reflect the current state of the art. These proposals resulted from the Public Technical Conference on Emergency Evacuation of Transport Airplanes held in Seattle, Washington on September 3-6, 1985. Abstract: This notice proposes new requirements for water-survival equipment carried aboard airplanes and rotocraft. The requirements would apply, after specified dates, to US-certificate holders that conduct common-carriage operations with airplanes and rotocraft. This proposal is in response to the Airport and Airway Safety and Capacity Enhancement Act of 1987 (PL 100-223) and relates to safety recommendations by the National Transportation Safety Board. The proposed requirements are intended to increase the likelihood of aircraft passengers surviving a crash landing in water and, thus, this rulemaking is significant because of the safety implications.

The Airport and Airways Safety and Capacity Expansion Act of 1987 directs the Secretary of Transportation to initiate a rulemaking proceeding to consider requiring all seats onboard all air carrier aircraft to meet improved crashworthiness standards based upon the best available testing standards. The intended effect of this action is to increase passenger protection and survivability in survivable impact accidents. Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations specify the medical standards which must be met before a medical certificate is issued to an airman. For example, a medical certificate is required before a person can obtain a pilot license. During rulemaking involving these regulations, a considerable number of commenters expressed the belief that the current standards should and could be revised to state, in generally applicable objective terms, all those circumstances in which the FAA will issue medical certificates. In the past, some certificates have been issued on a case-by-case basis, with appropriate limitations, under exemption and waiver provisions where strict compliance with the existing standards was not essential in the interest of safety. A comprehensive review of these regulations is necessary to determine if the commenters' arguments are correct. If they are and the requested regulatory changes are possible, it could greatly reduce burdens, both on the FAA and airmen, associated with the processing of medical certificates.

This proposal is prompted by reports of nuisance or inappropriate aural warnings which have occurred in modern transport airplanes when strictly adhering to the present regulations. It is intended to enhance flight safety while decreasing the regulatory burden associated with making an equivalent level of safety finding or exemption, for those systems that do not meet the existing requirements. Abstract: This notice proposes to require that all turbojet-powered airplanes operated in accordance with Part 121 have airborne systems that warn a flightcrew of the presence of low-altitude windshear conditions and then provide flight guidance to follow that would produce the optimal flight path for a missed approach procedure. This proposal would require that any Part 121 operator using an approved simulator as a part of its training program develop a specific windshear-related simulator flight training course for its flightcrews. This proposal would require that Part 121 and 135 operators using an approved training program include training concerning the low-altitude windshear phenomenon as a part of their normal ground training. Low-altitude windshear has been a prime causal factor in numerous air carrier accidents and possibly has contributed to a number of general aviation accidents.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 145

Abstract: This notice proposes to update the regulations for certificating foreign repair stations to accommodate the increasing demand for maintenance and alteration of U.S.-registered aircraft manufactured worldwide. This proposal would (1) modify the requirement for determination of need before a foreign repair station may be considered for U.S. certification, and (2) modify the limitations on the scope of work that a foreign repair station may perform on U.S.-registered aircraft, engines, propellers, appliances, and component parts for use on U.S.-registered aircraft. In addition, it is proposed that a foreign or domestic manufacturer, or a product for which it holds a U.S. type certificate and that is certificated by the FAA as a repair station, be allowed to return to service a component maintained or altered by a noncertificated source subject to specified conditions. Lastly, to be consistent with the air carrier operating rules, the air taxi/commercial operator rules would be amended to permit the airworthiness release to be signed by a person authorized by a U.S.-certificated foreign repair station.

Abstract: This final rule would establish a recreational pilot certificate which would allow a student pilot to receive certification to fly certain aircraft after fewer hours of training than are currently required of a private pilot applicant. The recreational pilot certificate is intended to be a low-cost alternative to a private pilot certificate for persons interested in flying basic, experimental, or homebuilt aircraft in close proximity to a home airport that is not in airspace in which communication with an air traffic control facility is required. The rule would also establish an annual flight review requirement for noninstrument-rated private pilots with fewer than 400 flight hours. The regulation was significant because of its involvement with important departmental policy. However, recent regulations issued by the Office of the Secretary and voluntary schedule changes by the airlines have lessened the need for this specific proposal. Therefore, this proposed rule will be withdrawn.Timetable:

This proposal would revise test procedures applicable to noise certification tests conducted on or after January 1, 1988. It would also revise the noise-level limit numbers to approximate the equivalent of the sound levels measured and corrected in accordance with the current standard. These proposals result from industry requests for certification to be more directly based upon typical inservice noise measurements and from studies conducted in several nations over a three-year period under the auspices of the International Civil Aviation Organization. In addition, the FAA proposes to exempt antique airplanes and changes involving the addition of floats or skis from the acoustical change measurement and documentation requirements of Part 21. This regulation is significant because of substantial public interest.Timetable:

National Environmental Policy Act, Title I; EO 11514; 49 USC 106(g)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 36; 14 CFR 91Legal Deadline: NoneAbstract: This proposal would revise both noise certification standards and operating noise rules to ensure that aircraft certificated within certain broad noise groups or "stages" remain within those stages. Those proposals would apply to transport category large aircraft and to turbojet powered aircraft regardless of category. The proposed rule would prohibit modification of both individual airplanes and whole airplane types where those modifications would result in the growth of noise beyond the limits of the airplane's current stage. While the proposal would not restrict airplane changes that result in lower noise, it would in some cases prohibit remodification of those aircraft to return to their original noise levels. The FAA believes that these rules are necessary to correct a defect in the current regulations and to protect airports, aircraft operators, and the public from the effects of that defect. This rulemaking is significant because of intense public interest.Timetable:

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 121Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action would amend the regulations to require an independent power source for the public address (PA) system in certain transport category airplanes. The requirement would be applicable to future type certification of airplanes that are required to have PA systems for use in air carrier service and to such airplanes manufactured after a specified date, regardless of the date of application for type certificate. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves an important cabin-safety issue.

Abstract: The proposal would require that all civil aircraft operating into, within, or out of the United States through a coastal air defense identification zone be operated under a filed flight plan regardless of true airspeed. Each such operation by an aircraft equipped with a functioning air traffic control (ATC) transponder would have to be conducted with that transponder on and replying on the appropriate code or on a code assigned by ATC. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This action would propose requirements to improve cargo compartment fire protection for transport category airplanes operated under Parts 121 and 135 after a specified date. This action would propose a new rule which would require, within two years, replacement of ceiling and sidewall (including door and bulkhead) cargo compartment fire resistant liner panels in Class C and D cargo compartments greater than 200 cubic feet in volume in certain transport category airplanes. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest in crashworthiness criteria.

Abstract: This notice proposes to limit increases in passenger emergency escape path distance by establishing a new standard limiting the distance any passenger seat may be from the nearest emergency exit and the distance any exit may be from an adjacent exit. The proposal would make the standard applicable to type certification of new transport category airplane models, regardless of the date of original application for type certificate, and to airplanes operating under Part 121, except those already in operation. The standard would be applicable for issuance of standard airworthiness certificates for airplanes manufactured after the NPRM date. The proposal is a result of the recent public Emergency Evacuation Task Force and is intended to improve the likelihood of passengers safely escaping an airplane during an emergency evacuation; for this reason the rulemaking is considered significant.

Abstract: The FAA amends its regulations to require digital flight data recorders and cockpit voice recorders (CVRs) to be installed in a broad category of airplanes and rotorcraft operated by air carriers and commuters, as well as in selected aircraft operated in general aviation. The amendments are in response to legislation which mandates the FAA to amend its flight recorder and CVR requirements in accordance with recommendations from the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB). The intent of this rulemaking is to provide more information to accident investigators in determining the causes of accidents and the measures needed to correct the causes. In addition, the FAA also requests additional comments regarding the general aviation requirements. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public and congressional interest.

This action is in response to numerous complaints, suggestions, and petitions for exemption concerning several regulatory requirements received from users of the National Airspace System. These users state that these sections contain obsolete references and vague, complex, and inadequate language and that, in some instances, the cost of compliance is not justified by the benefits derived.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Notice proposes to amend Part 25 of the Federal Aviation Regulations (FAR) to upgrade the structural requirements for transport category airplane pressurized cabins by (1) amending the criteria for evaluation of the secondary effects of openings in the pressure vessel, and (2) extending the area of consideration to include openings anywhere within the pressure vessel. The required opening sizes to be considered would not be changed. The proposal is the result of an FAA review of the pressurized cabin load requirements and is intended to make the pressurized cabin load requirements less design-dependent and more objective. It would require evaluation of openings in any pressurized compartment and examination of the effects of differential pressure loads on any critical structure inside or outside of the pressurized cabin.

Abstract: This rule requires the "no smoking" sign to be turned on at all times on scheduled airline flights, except for flights between the United States and other countries, which are scheduled to be two hours or less in duration. This rule carries out a ban on smoking on such flights mandated by PL 100-202. The rule also makes minor changes in other, related sections of Parts 121 and 135 which affect smoking aboard air carrier aircraft during flights not covered by a total ban. Smoking in lavatories is prohibited on all air carrier flights. By December 31, 1988, aircraft lavatories must have placards which notify passengers that tampering with smoke detectors is prohibited by Federal law. Finally the required passenger briefing must include more detailed instructions on smoking, including all these changes and the new statutory ban on tampering with smoke alarms in aircraft lavatories.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 91

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, June 30, 1988.

Abstract: This rulemaking requires a transponder and automatic altitude reporting equipment in terminal airspace of certain airports where air traffic control radar service is provided. Implementation will be in two phases: Phase I, effective June 1, 1989, requires a transponder with Mode C at and above 10,000 feet MSL, and within 30 miles of TCA primary airports. Balloons, gliders, and aircraft without an electrical system are excluded when operating outside a TCA below the altitude of the TCA ceiling and when operating between 10,000 and 18,000 feet MSL. Phase II, effective December 30, 1990, implements a transponder with Mode C requirement in and above the airspace of an ARSA up to 10,000 feet. This rulemaking was significant because of substantial public interest and statutory requirement.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 10927 Note

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 387

Abstract: Sections 207-209 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984 establish a process whereby any State law or regulation pertaining to commercial motor vehicle safety in interstate commerce will be reviewed and analyzed by the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Regulatory Review Panel (Safety Panel). The Safety Panel is to determine if such law or regulation has the same effect as, is less stringent than, or is additional to or more stringent than the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations. Based on the determination of the Safety Panel, the Secretary is to initiate a rulemaking proceeding to determine if such a law or regulation may remain in effect and enforced. This advance notice of proposed rulemaking is the initial rulemaking action for any possible preemptive action by the Secretary. It will contain alternatives for comment on ways the Secretary may satisfy the requirements of section 208 of the Act.

Abstract: The FHWA is considering proposing revisions to the requirements for private motor carriers of passengers and the drivers of private motor vehicles of passengers. The proposed revisions would require private motor carriers of passengers and drivers of private motor vehicles of passengers to operate under the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR). However, the paperwork burden of these requirements will be minimized and several parts of the FMCSR will not apply to either private motor carriers of passengers or to drivers of such vehicles. This rulemaking is significant in that it is controversial, involving bringing new carriers under the regulatory scheme.

Abstract: The FHWA is requesting comments on a proposal which would mandate chemical testing of interstate drivers of commercial motor vehicles for the use of drugs. The impetus for this action is the safety and health concern associated with the use of drugs by these personnel. The goal of the proposed rule is to reduce accidents and casualties that result from the use of drugs. This NPRM was preceded by two drug rulemaking actions which were published in the Federal Register on 5/13/86 (BMCS Docket No. MC-116, Amendment No. 83-17, 51 FR 17568; BMCS Docket No. MC-120, Notice No. 86-3, 51 FR 17572). The latter of those actions proposed a drug test plan (much less comprehensive than proposed here) for drivers of hazardous materials. The former requested comments on specific questions regarding the various aspects of a drug control program applicable to interstate drivers. The intent of this NPRM is to consolidate the subject matter of the previous actions and propose a comprehensive drug control program applicable to all drivers in interstate commerce. Abstract: The FHWA is seeking public comment concerning the development of Federal commercial motor vehicle inspection standards which would be applicable to motor carriers engaged in interstate or foreign commerce. This action is required by section 210 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984. The proposed revisions will require motor carriers to comply with Federal inspection standards, a State inspection program or an authorized self-inspection program.

Additional Information: The NPRM proposed revisions after taking into account the public comments received to the ANPRM (01/10/85), 50 FR 1245). The 1/10/85 ANPRM also solicited comments on the provisions relating to the parts and accessories necessary for the safe operation of commercial motor vehicles. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 3102; PL 98-554, Sec 110

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 393

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking action responds to section 210 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984. Section 210 requires the Department to open Part 393 of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR), which concerns the parts and accessories necessary for the safe operation of commercial motor vehicles for public comment and review. In essence, Part 393 is the basis for the vehicle inspection currently performed on vehicles operated by motor carriers subject to DOT jurisdiction.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 98-554, Sec 215; 49 USC 3102

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 385

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 215 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984 requires the FHWA, in cooperation with the Interstate Commerce Commission, to establish a procedure to determine the safety fitness of owners and operators of commercial motor vehicles including persons seeking new or additional operating authority as motor carriers. Comments were requested regarding the proposed changes in the current safety rating procedures and a new proposal for those carriers who have not previously been assigned a safety rating or who intend to be a new entrant into the motor carrier industry. It has been determined that this rulemaking action is a significant regulation under the regulatory policies and procedures of the Department of Transportation because of the total estimated indirect benefits that may result.

Abstract: FHWA sought comments on a request to designate boat transporters as specialized equipment under provision of section 411(d) of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (STAA). Of prime concern were comments and information on the following issues relating to boat transporters: maneuvering characteristics, safety, control, offtracking, crosswind effects, and the need for overall length limits on boat transporters. Information on the similarities and dissimilarities between boat transporters and auto transporters was also solicited, as well as information on the consistency of truck configurations used for hauling boats. Comments were requested regarding the need to preempt current State regulation of this vehicle, as well as an actual definition and description of boat transporters, and on the types of vehicles that should be considered as specialized equipment as well as an actual definition.

FHWA issued a NPRM on December 11, 1987 proposing the standards. Included in the proposal are requirements placed on the State in section 12009 pertaining to a check with the information system before issuing a license. Abstract: In response to Section 12008 of the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1986, the FHWA requested comments on the establishment of a commercial driver blood alcohol concentration (BAC) standard for "driving under the influence." Also in response to Section 12008 of the Act, the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) conducted a study on the appropriateness of selecting one of several alternative BAC levels as the level at which a person operating a commercial motor vehicle would be deemed to be driving under the influence of alcohol. Based on the results of the study and the rulemaking comments, the Secretary of Transportation must promulgate a commercial driver BAC standard. States would be required to enact laws providing that any driver who operates a commercial motor vehicle at the Federal BAC level or above it is deemed to be driving under the influence of alcohol. States not enacting a BAC-level law for commercial motor vehicle drivers risk the loss of Federal-aid highway funds. The comments received were available to the NAS and served as the docket comments, along with the NAS study for the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking issued on May 10, 1988.

Section 174 of STURAA amended 23 U.S.C. 154 by giving the States the authority to increase, without loss of Federal-aid funds, the maximum speed limit to no more than 65 miles per hour (mph) on certain Interstate System highways. A notice of proposed rulemaking will be issued proposing revisions to the sanction process contained in 23 CFR Part 659. Initially, FHWA had considered issuing a new regulation as a vehicle for accelerating Federal-aid projects pursuant to Section 129 of the STAA of 1982. However, it has been determined that the objectives of Section 129 can be best implemented by revisions to existing regulations. Therefore, separate regulations will not be issued regarding the acceleration program. This approach received the concurrence of Deputy Administrator Lamm on April 11, 1984. This regulation will be withdrawn.

Abstract: The existing regulation on pavement design would be modified to eliminate unnecessary requirements and duplicative provisions. Currently, the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) uses the "American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials (AASHTO) Interim Guide for Design of Pavement Structures, 1972," Chapter III Revised, 1981, to evaluate the adequacy of the proposed pavement designs for Federal-aid projects. AASHTO has approved a new Pavement Design Guide. FHWA will solicit public comment on the revised guide and adopt it for application on Federal-aid projects as a guide, not standard. It will be acceptable for State highway agencies to design pavement structures based upon other procedures and practices that by past performance have proven satisfactory for the pertinent conditions. If a State highway agency elects to use procedures other than AASHTO's, the procedures will require FHWA approval. The FHWA will check or review pavement design in accordance with procedures approved by the State highway agency. Each State highway agency will be required to have a pavement management system.

Abstract: In May, 1985, the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials (AASHTO) approved its publication entitled "Standard Specification for Structural Supports for Highway Signs, Luminaires, and Traffic Signals," which is incorporated in 23 CFR 625 as a specification. FHWA proposed to adopt the AASHTO publication for Federal-aid application. An interim final rule adopted all of the 1985 AASHTO sign and luminaire specifications except section 7, Breakaway Supports. The SNPRM contained the results of FHWA's crash testing of previously accepted luminaire support systems and opened the docket for further comments.

Abstract: The FHWA is amending its regulations on contract procedures to implement the provisions of Section 111(c) of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 (STURAA). Section 111(c) of STURAA amends 23 USC 112 to require a standardized contract clause in all Federal-aid contracts unless otherwise provided for by State law. The standardized contract clause is to provide for the equitable adjustment of contract terms: (1) where site conditions differ from those specified in the contract; (2) where work has been suspended by order of the contracting agency (other than a suspension of work caused by the fault of the contractor or by weather); and (3) where there are material changes in the scope of the work.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 23 USC 315; 49 USC 303

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 771

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The need for rulemaking in this area has been caused by recent court decisions. The courts have delayed or halted several important Federal-aid highway projects on the grounds that the proximate effects or impacts from a given highway would constructively use land from a park or historic site. In each instance the FHWA had determined that there existed no constructive use. This determination was based on an analysis of proximity impacts and whether the impacts would substantially impair the functions or values which qualified the property for protection under Section 4(f) of the DOT Act. The FHWA has been operating under an informal policy directive on constructive use since 11/12/85. This rulemaking action would formalize existing policy on constructive use, and future court decisions would address the regulation rather than be based on ad hoc interpretations of specific project facts.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 3102; PL 98-554, Sec 206

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 390

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking action addressed the general provisions regarding the Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR) contained in Part 390 of 49 CFR. This rulemaking was undertaken to implement section 206 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act (MCSA) of 1984 which mandated the reissuance of the FMCSR. The revisions will assist the various segments of the truck and bus industries in their efforts to comply with the FMCSR by (1) incorporating definitions from the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984; (2) clarifying and updating the regulations; (3) eliminating redundancy; (4) combining and locating in a single place the definitions of many general items presently located throughout the FMCSR; and (5) addressing comments concerning the elimination of certain regulatory exemptions.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2314; 49 USC 3102; PL 97-424, Sec 414

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 393

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, April 2, 1988.

Abstract: Section 414 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (Pub. L. 97-424) states that Congress declares the visibility on wet roadways in the Interstate System should be improved by reducing splash and spray from truck tractors, semitrailers and trailers. Congress instructed the Secretary to establish, by regulation, minimum standards with respect to the performance and installation of splash and spray suppression devices on truck tractors, semitrailers and trailers. Further, Congress mandated that all vehicles in use 5 years from date of enactment be equipped with such devices. This rulemaking was considered significant because of its economic impact on the motor carrier industry. Section 205 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1987 (P.L. 100-17) established a deadline of 4/2/88 for final action unless the Secretary determines that insufficient technology exists upon which to base a final rule. On 5/25/88, the FHWA determined that insufficient technology existed upon which to base a final rule. A termination notice was published.

Abstract: The FHWA has provided a statement of FHWA interpretation and policy addressing the size and weight provisions contained in the Tandem Truck Safety Act of 1984 (TTSA) which amended the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (STAA). This action addresses (1) conditions under which segments of the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways may be deleted from the National Truck Network, (2) conditions affecting the designation of new routes on the Federal-Aid Primary System as part of the National Truck Network, and (3) new provisions for 102-inch wide 28 1/2-foot semi-trailers. The issue relative to the qualifications of highways previously designated with lane widths less than 12 feet was the subject of a

Abstract: These revisions to the bridge inspection standards will retain the existing 2-year frequency as the basic requirement. The States will also be expected to inspect some bridges more often than once every two years when the condition, age, load capacity, or monitoring is needed. However, for certain types or groups of bridges the States would be permitted, under the proposed revisions, to request FHWA approval for appropriate inspection intervals that are longer than the basic 2-year interval. The modified inspection interval can be appropriate for groups of relatively new structures in good condition, which have safe load capacities at least equal to the State legal load, in low traffic volume areas, with proven performance histories, provided that the inspection plan is approved by the FHWA.

Abstract: The FHWA issued a final rule to redefine "environmental restoration" as that term is used in FHWA's financial responsibility regulations. This action was taken in response to a joint petition filed by the American Insurance Association (AIA) and the American Trucking Associations (ATA), and because of the current insurance crisis facing the motor carrier industry. This action made clear the motor carriers are required to provide evidence of financial responsibility to satisfy claims for damage to human health and to the environment, including necessary restoration costs, but not for potential or speculative damages for which they would not otherwise be found liable.

Abstract: The FHWA amended its regulation on utility adjustments to clarify the circumstances under which Federal-aid highway funds may be used to reimburse highway agencies' costs incurred in implementing projects solely for corrective measures to reduce the hazards of utility facilities to highway users. This revision was made to implement section 108 of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act (STURAA) of 1987 (Pub. Abstract: The rule technically amends Appendix A of 23 CFR Part 658 which identifies interstate and other Federal-aid primary routes designated as part of the National Network for trucks available to vehicles described in the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (STAA). Specifically this rule removes the footnotes related to time of day and other restrictions on interstate highway segments in New York which are no longer valid. This amendment is in response to recent revisions to 23 CFR Part 658 which established specific approval requirements for use restrictions on interstate highways.

Abstract: The purpose of this advance notice is to announce that the NHTSA is considering the proposal of requirements for light trucks, vans, and multipurpose passenger vehicles intended to reduce the risk of fatalities and injuries in side impacts and other crashes where the side protection of the vehicle is a relevant factor, and to request comments to assist the agency in developing the proposal. The contemplated requirements would be part of the agency's efforts to address the serious problem of side impacts. As another part of those efforts, the agency earlier this year proposed requirements for passenger cars intended to reduce the risk of injuries to the thorax and pelvis in side impact crashes between vehicles. This rulemaking is considered significant because of the public safety implications.

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard (FMVSS) No. 301 specifies requirements for the integrity of motor vehicle fuel systems so that fires that result from fuel spillage during and after motor vehicle crashes may be reduced. This standard applies to passenger cars and school buses, and to multipurpose passenger vehicles, trucks, and buses that have a gross vehicle weight rating of 10,000 pounds or less. The California Highway Patrol (CHP) petitioned the agency to specify requirements in FMVSS No. 301 to reduce fuel spills from the fuel tank or fuel lines on heavy trucks and truck tractors over 10,000 pounds. The fuel spills, according to the CHP, are due to damage caused by road debris. On May 2, 1988, the agency published a grant of petition for rulemaking in the Federal Register for the CHP petition. However, the agency is granting the petition pending the results of its forthcoming investigation of fuel-tank fires in over-the-road trucks.

The type of light source proposed was that currently used in European headlamps, the type H-4. Review of the merits of the petition found that, as used in Europe, the light source was not capable of achieving the level of performance required of U.S. light sources and NHTSA subsequently proposed a U.S. version to be known as the type HB2, which would have interchangeability and performance aspects compatible with U.S. safety needs. 1970. GEAR LOCK; THEFT PROTECTION*Significance: NonsignificantLegal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1407CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.114Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: An amendment to Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard (FMVSS) No. 114 to prevent the inadvertent knocking out of gear of the gear shift lever and potential accidents, injuries and fatalities from vehicles rolling out of control. This amendment is in response to a petition for rulemaking relating to an inadvertent knock-out-of-gear accident resulting in a fatality. In addition, FMVSS 114 is proposed to be amended to insure that, if a steering column locking device is employed, the device cannot be activated until the key is removed and the vehicle must be in park on automatic transmission to remove the key and reverse for manual transmissions.

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.102

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The current stated purpose of Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 102 is to reduce the likelihood of shifting errors. Manufacturers have provided a permanently displayed shift lever position indicator to meet the requirement of S3.2 of this Standard. Chrysler and General Motors petitioned the agency to amend the Standard to allow the use of electronic "PRNDL" displays. Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The agency proposed to amend Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 115 and Part 567 with regard to vehicles not originally manufactured for sale in the United States and that do not comply with Federal motor vehicle safety standards, but that are imported into this country by businesses unaffiliated with the original manufacturer. These vehicles often are labelled with "homemade" 17 digit Vehicle Identification Numbers (VIN). Under the proposal, the importer would label the vehicle partially exempt from Standard No. 115 and direct interested parties to the location of the original manufacturer's number to be used in lieu of the VIN. The agency is taking this action in response to a petition from the National Automobile Theft Bureau (NATB).

1976. + SPLASH AND SPRAY SUPPRESSION DEVICES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2314

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 583

Legal Deadline: None

Standard for new vehicles is now required to take effect one year after final rule is published.

Abstract: In accordance with the mandate of section 414 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982, this rulemaking proposed to establish minimum standards with respect to the performance of splash and spray suppression devices on truck tractors, semitrailers, and trailers. It also proposed to establish minimum standards with respect to the installation of splash and spray suppression devices on new vehicles. This regulation was significant because it was potentially controversial. After careful consideration, this proposal was withdrawn, as no available technology has been demonstrated as meeting the statutory criteria for establishing minimum performance standards.

Abstract: A petition was received from the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety (IIHS) on November 8, 1985. It requested that the Federal lighting regulation (FMVSS No. 108) be changed to allow installation of daytime running lights (DRLs) by original equipment manufacturers. After issuing an NPRM in response to this petition, the agency has now withdrawn this proposal. The Executive Order on Federalism impacts on this action as do the apparent plans of vehicle manufacturers to not avail themselves of this option if it were made available as a final rule.

Abstract: Standard No. 121, "Air Brake Systems," specifies braking requirements for trucks, buses, and trailers equipped with air-brake systems. The standard specifies various criteria, typically concerning configuration, speed, or weight, for excluding certain vehicles whose attributes result in restricted highway operation. In response to a petition submitted by Corpac Industries, the final rule eliminates from the standard the exclusion based on vehicle width, except for trailers exceeding the 102.36-inch width with extendable equipment in the retracted position and equipped with two short-track axles across the trailer width. The width exclusion is unnecessary to achieve the purpose of ensuring that the standard does not apply to certain vehicles that are appropriately excluded from it.

Abstract: This final rule revises the agency's regulation implementing section 408 of the Highway Safety Act of 1966, relating to the criteria States must meet to be eligible for alcohol incentive grants. The agency believes some portions of the regulation are unnecessarily restrictive in defining the manner in which a State may demonstrate compliance with the statutory criteria. This action is intended to increase flexibility for the States, by establishing alternative methods of demonstrating compliance with the section 408 criteria to qualify for alcohol incentive grant funds.

Significance: Agency Priority
Legal Authority: PL 100-342 Rail Safety Improvement Act of 1988
CFR Citation: 49 CFR 225
Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This project addresses possible problems of bias and inaccuracy in FRA's railroad data base. Although FRA investigates about 400 accidents a year and receives unsolicited information on a few more accidents, FRA's sole source of information on the great majority of railroad accidents is the railroad company itself. The proposed rule would require that the railroad provide written notification to any employee whom the railroad alleges to have caused a certain type of accident, informing the employee of the relevant allegations and of his or her right to file an accident statement with FRA. The proposed rule also would establish the format and filing procedures for such statements. Alternatives being considered are: (1) revising the reporting form itself to include boilerplate language regarding what, where, and how to file the employee statement and (2) requiring a separate notice to the employee with the same information. Potential costs have yet to be determined. This action is considered significant because of Departmental policy.

Abstract: Based on experience derived from the first year of administration of FRA's rule on Control of Alcohol and Drug Use in Railroad Operations, FRA has identified the need for additional capability to detect and control drug use that can impact on the safety of rail transportation. Accordingly, FRA is developing a proposed rule prohibiting any unauthorized use of controlled substances by employees subject to the current rule and mandating random testing of those employees for controlled substances. FRA has also conducted a special safety inquiry on the administration of the present rule and is developing a notice of proposed rulemaking to refine and enhance the existing regulatory requirements.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, December 22, 1988.

Statute requires both a generic change within 30 days of enactment and a detailed change within 6 months of enactment.

Abstract: The Rail Safety Improvement Act raised the maximum civil penalty amount for violations of FRA rules. It also authorized the imposition of penalties against individuals for willful violations. In a two-stage process, FRA is conforming its rules to the new statute. In an interim rule, FRA is amending the language of its applicability and responsibility provisions. FRA is also stating its policies on what it considers "willful violations" and its procedural approach for handling allegations of noncompliance. Anyone testing that equipment must certify that the required test was properly performed. FRA's current rule requires that virtually all such tests be certified; FRA proposes an expansion of that provision to cover all personnel. ### 2017. + MAJOR CAPITAL INVESTMENT PROJECTS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1602; 49 USC 1604; 49 USC 1607; 49 USC 1607a-1; 23 USC 103(e)(4); 23 USC 142

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 611

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation would set out the process applicants for grants under the UMT Act (49 USC 1601 et seq.) and the Federal-Aid Highway Act should follow in order to be eligible for Federal financial assistance for major urban mass transportation investments. A major urban mass transportation investment is any project that involves the construction of a new fixed guideway for use by buses or rail vehicles. Abstract: The threshold for the aviation-information program for regulatory flexibility analysis is 60 seats or maximum payload of 18,000 pounds or less. Carriers operating aircraft under these limits are considered small carriers. FAA, on the other hand, uses a threshold based on the operational certificate requirements (Part 121 versus Part 135) with the threshold established at 30 seats or maximum payload of 7,500 pounds for a Part 135 certificate. FAA regulatory analysis for safety, congestion, etc., centers around the lower threshold which means much of the aviation economic information that they use has to be manipulated to fit their needs. This proposal of standardizing the threshold within the Department would save considerable resources and would eliminate much confusion in the air transportation industry. Most carriers, especially the newer ones, are familiar with FAA's requirements. This rulemaking is significant because it will achieve consistency in departmental treatment.

2047. + OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE PROCEDURES FOR GAS PIPELINES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Adequate procedures for pipeline operation and maintenance, backed up by personnel training, have proven effective in minimizing the potential for accidents. Gas operators are required to have such procedures, but the existing requirements lack the clarity and specificity needed to assure a uniform, broad-based level of safety for all pipelines. Therefore, this proposal would clarify the existing requirements, make them more comprehensive, and, where appropriate, similar to the more detailed requirements applicable to the operation and maintenance of hazardous liquid pipelines. This is a significant action because of the need for adequate procedures to provide a basis for training and qualifying operator personnel.

2048. + PRESSURE TESTING EXISTING HAZARDOUS LIQUID PIPELINES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2002

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Recent accidents involving petroleum product pipelines demonstrate the potential for catastrophic losses if a large spill occurs in a populated area. Studies have shown that accidents attributable to hidden material or construction defects can be prevented by restricting operation to not more than 80 percent of a prior test or operating pressure. In this regard, significant results have been achieved by imposing such an operating restriction on those product pipelines that carry highly volatile liquids. This rule would extend this existing safety standard to all product pipelines. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest in the safety implications.

2049. + MAPS AND RECORDS OF PIPELINE LOCATION AND CHARACTERISTICS; NOTIFICATION OF STATE AGENCIES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672; 49 USC 2002

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192; 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Maintenance of appropriate information about pipelines is essential for emergency response, compliance with safety standards, and other purposes. As part of a continuing policy to adopt similar requirements for gas and hazardous liquid pipelines where appropriate for safety, this action proposes to equalize as far as possible the requirements that gas and liquid operators keep maps and records to show the location and other characteristics of pipelines. In addition, operators would be required to provide this information to State agencies upon request. This is a significant action because of Congressional and State concerns about the need for appropriate public officials to have pipeline information.

2061. DETERMINING THE EXTENT OF CORROSION ON EXPOSED GAS PIPELINES

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Corrosion is a major cause of gas and hazardous liquid pipeline accidents. A safety standard applicable to liquid pipelines requires operators to examine exposed pipe for evidence of external corrosion and, if harmful corrosion is found, to investigate further to determine the extent of the corrosion. As part of a continuing policy to adopt similar requirements for gas and liquid pipelines where appropriate for safety, this action proposes that exposed gas pipelines with evidence of harmful corrosion be investigated to determine the extent of the corrosion.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This NPRM will propose to eliminate the "grandfather clause" of the natural gas pipeline safety regulations that permits operation of an existing rural or offshore gas pipeline found to be in satisfactory condition at the highest actual operating pressure to which the segment was subjected during the five years preceding July 1, 1970, or, in the case of an offshore gathering line, July 1, 1976.

Abstract: To develop performance-oriented packaging standards and hazardous material classification based on the United Nations Committee of Experts on the Transport of Dangerous Goods. Also includes former non-significant rulemakings entitled "Consolidation of Specifications and Establishment of Performance Standards for Specification Bags" (Docket No. HM-153), "Specifications for and use of Specification 17 Steel Drums" (Docket No. HM-182), and "Organic Peroxide Requirements" (Project 186-72). The rulemaking is significant because a large number of specifications for packaging in the Hazardous Materials Regulations would be affected by this project. To a large extent the complexity and mass of the present Hazardous Materials Regulations are due to the detailed specification-type packaging standards contained in these regulations. To replace these with standards based on the U.N. system would both simplify the present regulations and facilitate international trade.

Abstract: DOT has proposed a rule that would require submission to DOT of nonstop market data from foreign carriers providing scheduled service between their home countries and the United States. This information is needed to evaluate existing bilateral agreements and reciprocity between U.S. and foreign countries. In addition, international charter data currently collected from carriers would be incorporated with this reporting. This nonstop market data should replace much of the data collected by the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) on Form I-92. Although there will be some start-up costs, it is anticipated that over the long run there will be substantial savings for both the industry and the government. See 2137-AB01 for companion rule for U.S. air carriers.

Abstract: Large U.S. air carriers file detailed service segment data in ADP format for scheduled operations, while smaller carriers file a condensed version on a hardcopy form. Charter data is filed on another form. The Department has issued a rulemaking proposing to incorporate all three systems onto one automated data system by standardizing the reporting between scheduled and charter operations. Much of the data currently collected is proposed for elimination.
Also, much of the data reported on the hardcopy Form 41 T-Schedules is proposed for elimination, since data for these schedules can be extracted from the automated system. Further, the foreign air carrier traffic and market reporting (2137-AA97) will be incorporated into this automated system providing a uniform traffic and market system for the Department.

Abstract: The current regulations require reports of hazardous material incidents. The objective of this review is to determine if the current data requirements can be modified to reduce the burden on industry but still result in the collection of the information needed for the hazardous materials safety program. Significance: Agency Priority

Abstract: Each year a large percentage of hazardous liquid pipeline accidents are caused by excavation damage. Experience has shown that excavation accident rates diminish when operators participate in "one-call" damage prevention programs. The Federal gas pipeline safety regulations now require that gas operators participate in such programs. This action would apply a similar requirement to operators of hazardous liquid pipelines. This is a significant action because of the widespread interest in the use of "one-call" programs to prevent damage to buried pipelines.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1803; 49 USC 1804; 49 USC 1805; 49 USC 1806; 49 USC 1807; 49 USC 1808

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 171.7; 49 CFR 173.20

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: RSPA proposes to amend the Hazardous Materials Regulations to permit the continued use of packagings that do not meet the requirements of the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) Standard N 14.1 - 1987, DOT Class 106 A multi-unit tank car tanks, and certain packagings not manufactured in accordance with ANSI N 14.1-87. These latter packagings will be required to be manufactured in accordance with an earlier edition of ANSI 14.1, or be manufactured and stamped in accordance with Section VIII, Division 1 of the ASME Code. RSPA has determined that these packagings, which have been used safely in the past, should be permitted to continue in use.

Abstract: This action proposes an alternate method for confirmation or revision of the maximum allowable operating pressure of pipelines previously tested to less than 90 percent of specified minimum yield strength. The alternate method would allow operators to establish a maximum allowable operating pressure in proportion to the level permitted for pipelines tested to 90 percent of specified minimum yield strength, or more, without retesting the pipeline. Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1803; 49 USC 1804; 49 USC 1805; 49 USC 1806

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 173

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposes to allow the use of railroad tank-car tanks with shell thicknesses in localized areas of less than the minimum currently allowed. The rule would require that tank shells be measured under specific conditions to ensure that the results of repairs do not further decrease shell thickness or result in a reduction in the level of safety. Under the existing rule, owners are required to bring tanks into conformance or remove them from hazardous materials service. This proposal would allow the tank cars to conform to a less stringent standard thereby avoiding the substantial costs associated with complete restoration or purchase of a new tank car, while still ensuring an adequate level of safety.

2096. + OPERATING-DIFFERENTIAL SUBSIDY FOR BULK CARGO VESSELS ENGAGED IN WORLDWIDE SERVICES; EXCLUSION OF COMMERCIAL CARGOES RESERVED FOR U.S.-FLAG CARRIERS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 46 USC 1114, (Appendix)

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 252

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Maritime Administration (MARAD) has entered into operating-differential subsidy contracts (ODSA) with operators of bulk cargo vessels that provide for the subsidized carriage of commercial cargo in the oceanborne foreign commerce of the United States and between foreign ports. These ODSAs specifically exclude the carriage of statutory-preference cargoes, but are silent about the cargoes that, while not preference cargoes according to a district court decision that was affirmed by the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, are reserved to U.S.-flag carriers by agreement of a foreign country that is a recipient of United States foreign assistance, in the form of cash transfers or grants. MARAD intends to propose a rulemaking that states the policy of not paying ODS on these cargoes that are reserved to U.S.-flag vessels at premium rates and are not subject to foreign competition, based on the conclusion that these are not "commercial" cargoes within the contemplation of the ODSA provisions.

2102. + CARGO PREFERENCE, U.S.-FLAG VESSELS; DETERMINATION OF FAIR AND REASONABLE RATES FOR BULK VESSELS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 46 USC 1241(b); 46 USC 1114(b)

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 382, (New)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation would require provision of rate and cost data to MARAD so it can determine fair and reasonable rates for carriage of preference cargo in bulk vessels at the request of concerned Federal agencies. MARAD would calculate guideline fair and reasonable rates using a methodology which would base those rates on a vessel's actual or constructed costs as determined from data submitted by the operator. It would establish requirements for submission of data on which the methodology would be based. This rulemaking is significant because it concerns a matter on which there is substantial public interest. It would clarify the meaning of a statutory term.

Additional Information: NPRM being withdrawn because the Maritime Subsidy Board final Opinion and Order in Docket S-764, that does not require CDS repayment for bulk vessels carrying preference cargoes, is a more attractive alternative for operators than ODS suspension that requires CDS repayment. Also, operator of only liner vessels to make election is in bankruptcy.

2115. REVISION OF 31 CFR PART 205 (TDC NO. 1075), PAYMENTS BETWEEN THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT AND RECIPIENT ORGANIZATIONS*Significance: Agency PriorityLegal Authority: 31 USC 6503CFR Citation: 31 CFR 205Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Revision of 31 CFR 205 will implement a new funding technique for Federal programs. The regulation would require a State to pay interest on Federal funds from the time they are deposited to the State's account until the time those funds are paid out to redeem checks or warrants or make payments by other means. This new "Checks Issued-Interest Remitted" technique was developed in response to statutes in some States that require that funds reside in a bank account prior to the issuance of checks. This revision also provides for the remittance of interest by the Federal Government if a State disburses its own funds for program purposes in accordance with Federal law, regulation or Federal/State agreement.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 27 USC 205

CFR Citation: 27 CFR 4.24

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposal expands the list of names officially recognized under 27 CFR Part 4, as being non-generic for the purposes of labeling and advertising of wine. This proposal is the result of petitions from numerous foreign countries for ATF recognition of non-generic wine designations which, in their view, denote distinctive national products. This proposal is also an outgrowth of one of the commitments made by the United States, in the Exchange of Letters of July 26, 1983 with the Commission of the European Communities, to work within the regulatory framework of 27 CFR Part 4, to prevent erosion of non-generic designations of geographic significance. For practical reasons it is being proposed that only "examples" of non-generic designations be listed in Part 4 while a complete list of all non-generic designations be listed in a new Part 12.

AGENCY: Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Treasury.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of regulations.

SUMMARY: As required by the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (Office) has prepared this semiannual agenda of its rules and regulations currently under review and scheduled for review. Regulatory actions taken since the publication of the Office's previous semiannual agenda on April 25, 1988 (53 FR 14192) are also included. It is expected that this semiannual agenda will enable the public to be more aware of, and allow it to more effectively participate in, the Office's regulatory activity.

ADDRESS: The mailing address for all contacts: Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, 490 L'Enfant Plaza East, SW., Washington, DC 20219.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For general information about this semiannual agenda, contact Nancy Lowther, Financial Analyst, Legislative and Regulatory Analysis Division, (202) 447-1177.

For additional information about a particular item on this semiannual agenda, contact the individual identified as the contact person.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Office has determined that none of the rulemakings discussed in this semiannual agenda requires a regulatory flexibility analysis; all entries have been determined not to have a "significant impact on a substantial number of small entities," and therefore are not subject to the provisions of the Act. Additionally, none of the rules is a "major" rule as defined by Executive Order 12291. Executive Order 12291 defines a "major" rule as one likely to result in:

- (1) An annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more;
- (2) A major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, Federal, State, or local government agencies, or geographic regions; or
- (3) Significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

2150. SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT DISCLOSURE RULES

Legal Authority: 15 USC 78

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 11, (New Subsection)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed rule would require that more detailed and meaningful information be provided to shareholders and the OCC concerning banks' loan portfolios, including loans to borrowers in foreign countries experiencing liquidity problems, other sources of income and exposure to risks. This will assist shareholders in evaluating proposals for mergers, consolidations, acquisitions and similar matters and will assist the OCC in administering and enforcing the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 as it applies to national banks. The OCC considered not proposing the additional amendments or proposing them as a general guide rather than a rule. However, the OCC determined it was appropriate to propose the additional requirements as amendments to Part 11 because the OCC believes the proposed requirements will help to clarify the types of disclosures which the OCC, shareholders and the public would consider material in analyzing various Exchange Act filings and statements. The proposed rule will also include amendments to update Part 11 to conform with recent amendments by the Securities and Exchange Commission to its Securities Exchange Act Disclosure Rules. Abstract: The proposed guidelines provide for a common framework of capital adequacy measurement to remove a source of competitive inequality for banks operating internationally. However, the OCC believes the risk-based capital ratio is a useful tool for measuring capital adequacy at all national banks. The framework of measurement is mainly directed to the credit risk of balance sheet and off-balance sheet assets as they relate to bank capital. Inter-American Investment Corporation. The second change deletes from the regulation an outdated and unnecessary provision describing procedures for banks to request OCC rulings. This final rule will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

Abstract: The OCC is engaged in a continuing review of its rules, policies, and procedures governing corporate activities. The OCC proposes to provide clarification of the OCC's ability to impose conditions on transactions between a bank and its subsidiaries; to add 12 CFR 5.36 to require notification to the OCC of certain equity investments which national banks are authorized by statute to make; to outline the responsibility of the applicants for accurate and complete filings; to centralize the OCC's distribution of forms; and to make several miscellaneous technical amendments. These proposals are expected to benefit the OCC by assisting the OCC in fulfilling its responsibility for maintaining the safety and soundness of national banks and the national banking system, and to improve OCC efficiency. AGENCY: Customs Service, Treasury.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda.

SUMMARY: In response to Pub. L. 96-354, the "Regulatory Flexibility Act," and Executive Order 12291, "Federal Regulations," Customs has prepared and is publishing for public information a list of regulations either under development or under review.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For additional information regarding the substance of any particular regulatory project described in the agenda, please communicate with the person identified as the "Agency Contact." All agency contact persons are located at U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, the address of which is noted below. Comments or inquiries of a general nature about the agenda itself should be directed to Gertrude A. Bresnahan, Regulations and Disclosure Law Branch, Office of Regulations and Rulings, Headquarters, U.S. Customs Service, Room 2119, 1301 Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, DC 20229 (202-566-8237).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

Public Law 96-354, the "Regulatory Flexibility Act" (RFA) and Executive Order (E.O.) 12291 of February 17, 1981, "Federal Regulations," require semiannual publication, in April and October of each year, or an agenda of regulations which are "likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities" and "major" regulations, respectively. The RFA and E.O. 12291 also require agencies to include in their agendas currently effective rules which are under agency review. Customs agenda includes a brief abstract of each regulatory project ("project") being considered, an indication of whether the project will have an RFA impact, the section(s) of the Code of Federal Regulations affected, the legal authority for the action being taken, the name, title, and telephone number of an agency contact and, where applicable, an approximate timetable of completing action on any project for which Customs has published a notice of proposed rulemaking. In addition, the status of projects referred to in previously published agendas is shown. It has been determined that none of the projects listed as being under development meets the standards required of a "major" regulation provided in E.O. 12291.

General statutory authority for the development or review of regulations relating to Customs matters is found in section 301, title 5, United States Code (5 U.S.C. 301), and in sections 66 and 1624, title 19, United States Code (19 U.S.C. 66, 1624). When appropriate, additional specific statutory authority is indicated as the legal authority for the project.

Abstract: Amendment to the Customs Regulations to provide that a continuous importation and entry bond secured by a corporate surety may only be filed with Customs under cover of a letter signed by an authorized officer or agent of that surety. Such an amendment would protect the Government from unnecessary delays in receiving payment from sureties of an importer's liabilities, for which the surety is also responsible, when the surety denies liability because it claims to have no record of the bond upon which the demand is made.

Abstract: Amendment to the Customs Regulations relating to the country of origin marking of jewelry. More permanent methods of marking are proposed to avoid removal of country of origin identifications after importation, but before sale to consumers often for the purpose of deceptively representing the merchandise as made in the U.S. Previous methods permitting country of origin marking for jewelry using adhesive labels or string tags would be permitted under the proposed changes only where the size of the article does not permit more permanent marking methods. For other articles, the changes will require that jewelry be indelibly marked with the country of origin by cutting, die-sinking, engraving, stamping, or some other equally permanent methods, or with a similarly marked plastic or metal tag.

Additional Information: A proposed interpretive rule was published on July 15, 1988 (51 FR 25574) soliciting comments on a proposal to require that all foreign-made Native American-style jewelry be indelibly marked with the country of origin by cutting, die-sinking, engraving or stamping. Numerous comments were received which generally were in favor of the proposal; most indicated that the proposal did not go far enough and many commenters thought that the change should extend to all jewelry. On August 23, 1988, Congress enacted Pub. L. 100-418, Omnibus Trade & Competitiveness Act of 1988, which among other things, requires the indelible and permanent marking on all imported Native American-style jewelry. Accordingly, we are revising our proposal to include jewelry in general, and the expanded proposal will have more general application.

Improving Government Regulations; Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Internal Revenue Service, Treasury.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of regulations.

SUMMARY: This semiannual agenda lists the regulations that the Internal Revenue Service will be developing from October 1, 1988, through September 30, 1989. Determinations with respect to the agenda were made as of July 31, 1988. The purpose of this semiannual agenda is to give the public adequate notice of regulatory activities of the Internal Revenue Service.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Bob Boyer, Assistant Chief Counsel (Corporate), Office of Chief Counsel, Internal Revenue Service, 1111 Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, DC 20224, Attention: CC:CORP:T:R (202-566-3918), not a toll-free call.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

General

Section 5 of Executive Order 12291 and section 602 of the Regulatory Flexibility Act both require that a semiannual agenda of regulations under development and review be published in the Federal Register. The next semiannual agenda of the Internal Revenue Service will be published in the Federal Register in April of 1989.

Description

This Semiannual Agenda of Regulations lists all projects within the Internal Revenue Service (I.R.S.) as of July 31, 1988, for the development of regulations to appear in the Code of Federal Regulations. This agenda lists existing regulations under development by the Office of Associate Chief Counsel (Technical), the General Litigation Division and the Office of Associate Chief Counsel (International) of the Office of Chief Counsel, I.R.S. The following information is provided for each regulation project: The title; priority status; its effect, if any, on small entities and levels of government; the part of the Code of Federal Regulations affected; the legal authority for issuing the regulation; a brief description of the problem to be addressed in the regulation; and a timetable of action taken and to be taken. Under additional information there is provided the control number of the project within the Chief Counsel's Office, and the names and telephone numbers of the drafting and reviewing attorneys.

On October 1, 1988, the technical function of the Office of Chief Counsel reorganized in order to achieve greater mission integration in the formulation, implementation, and interpretation of the tax laws and regulations. As a result of this decision, four of the divisions previously constituting the technical function of the Office of Chief Counsel were abolished and realigned into four new organizations. These new organizations are: Assistant Chief Counsel (Corporate), Assistant Chief Counsel (Income Tax & Accounting), Assistant Chief Counsel (Financial Institutions & Products), and Assistant Chief Counsel (Passthroughs & Special Industries). Due to the abolition of the Legislation & Regulations Division because of the reorganization, a number of regulations projects in the former Legislation & Regulations Division were reassigned to various attorneys in the four newly-created organizations in the Office of Associate Chief Counsel (Technical). Please be aware that the current attorney assignments listed in this semiannual agenda may have changed due to the reorganization.

By direction of the Secretary of the Treasury,
Lawrence B. Gibbs,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Abstract: The Tax Reform Act of 1986 eliminates the requirement that there be a mirrored system of taxation in Guam and the CNMI, and coordinates the tax system of these possessions and of American Samoa with the U.S. tax system. Guam the CNMI and American Samoa are granted full authority over their own local income tax systems, with respect to income of bona fide residents sourced within or effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within any of these possessions. This grant of authority is effective, however, only if and so long as an implementing agreement is in effect between the possession at issue and the United States which provides for elimination of double taxation, prevention of evasion or avoidance of U.S. tax exchange of information and other administrative matters. Regulations are needed to clarify who qualifies as a bona fide resident and to determine sourcing rules.

Abstract: Prior to the Tax Reform Act of 1986, inhabitants of the Virgin Islands satisfied their U.S. tax liability by filing a return with the Virgin Islands. The Tax Reform Act of 1986 repealed the inhabitant rule to correct an erroneous interpretation of its operation in connection with the Virgin Islands mirror code. Section 1274 of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 clarifies the filing obligations of individuals in the Virgin Islands. Bona fide residents of the Virgin Islands are required to file only one return with the Virgin Islands in which they report worldwide income and identify the sources of income from the Virgin Islands will be required to file two identical tax returns one with the US and one with the Virgin Islands and pay a pro rata amount of tax to each. Regulations are needed to clarify who qualifies as a bona fide resident. It is anticipated that the regulations will provide a facts and circumstances test for determining bona fide resident status. It is unknown what the operational costs will be.

2258. TRANSFER OF INTANGIBLES SUBJECT TO SECTION 367 OR 482 OF THE CODE

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Prior to the Reform Act of 1986, U.S. taxpayers were able to shift income out of the U.S. by transferring intangibles to Section 936 possessions corporations, contributing intangibles to related foreign corporations in Section 367 transactions or selling or licensing intangibles to related foreign parties at less than arm's-length prices and transactions subject to section 482.

Valuing such transfers (at the time of transfer) has proven to be difficult and non-productive. The Reform Act of 1986 provides that payments to be received by the transferor of intangibles must be commensurate with the income from the intangible. Major issue - What portion of the income from the intangible will constitute "commensurate"? Provisions will raise large amounts of revenue.

2404. ● USE OF FACSIMILE SIGNATURES BY INCOME TAX RETURN PREPARERS OF FORMS 1041, U.S. FIDUCIARY INCOME TAX RETURNS

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 6695 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1.6695-1 (b)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 1.6695-1 (b) currently requires that, with one exception, income tax return preparers must manually sign returns or claims for refund signed by them. The exception does allow preparers of returns and refund claims for nonresident aliens to use facsimile signatures under certain circumstances. Section 645 (a) of the Internal Revenue Code, added by section 1403 (a) of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, requires trusts, with certain limited exceptions, to use a calendar taxable year. The calendar year requirement means that, instead of being able to spread their duty to sign trust returns over the entire course of a year, preparers must now sign all trust returns before April 15 in order to present them to clients for timely filing. To alleviate this hardship, we are examining the advisability of permitting income tax return preparers of Forms 1041, U.S. Fiduciary Income Tax Returns, to use facsimile signatures and under what conditions such use would be permitted and appropriate.

However, even after the 15-day period expires, a payment for excess expenses shall be made after the redemption within a reasonable time following the verification by the district director of a written itemized statement submitted by the purchaser. There is no specific time frame set for the purchaser to submit his claim after the redemption and after the expiration of the 15-day period. Abstract: The Income Tax Regulations under section 367 will be amended to reflect the changes made to that section by the Tax Reform Act of 1984. Section 367 now provides generally that a foreign corporation will not be considered to be a corporation, for purposes of certain nonrecognition provisions of the Code, upon the transfer of property to such corporation by a U.S. person. The statute provides certain exceptions to that rule, exemptions to those exceptions, and special rules applicable to certain specified transfers. The regulations will provide guidance concerning the applicability of the general rule and its exceptions and special rules, including guidance concerning transfers of assets for use in the active conduct of a trade or business, stock transfers, transfers of intangible assets, and transfers of branch operations that have operated at a loss.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 382 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Abstract: Except as provided in regulations, sections 382 (b) (3) (A) and (d) (1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 provide for a ratable allocation of income or net operating loss, respectively, for the taxable year that includes the change date. Notice 87-79, 1987-2 C.B. 387, states that regulations will, in certain cases, provide taxpayers with an election to allocate income and loss between the periods ending with and after the change date on the basis of a closing of their books as of the change date (rather than on the basis of a ratable allocation). The notice also states that the regulations, in appropriate circumstances, will permit income that is realized after the date, but is properly attributable to the period ending with the change date, to be allocated to the pre-change period. The purpose of this regulation project is to provide guidance in the areas suggested by the notice and in related areas.

Abstract: On June 28, 1983, the Internal Revenue Service issued news release IR-83-88 requiring new information reporting by trustees of individual retirement accounts and issuers of individual retirement annuities (including accounts and annuities that are simplified employee pensions). Form 5498, Individual Retirement Arrangement Information, was prescribed in the news release as the information return to be used for this purpose. This regulation project will amend the regulations under section 408 to conform them to the reporting requirements announced in the news release. In addition, section 147 of the Tax Reform Act of 1984 amended section 408 (i) of the Code to require that contributions be identified as to the taxable year to which they apply. ### 2563. CUSTOMS LIMITATION ON TAXPAYER'S BASIS IN PROPERTY IMPORTED FROM RELATED PERSONS

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Prior to the Tax Reform Act of 1986 importers could claim a transfer price for customs purposes that was too low to be consistent with the price they claim for income tax purposes. Section 1248 of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 addressed this problem by enacting Section 1059A of the Internal Revenue Code, under which importers cannot claim a transfer price for income tax purposes that is higher than would be consistent with the value they claim for customs purposes. Regulations will be needed to provide rules for coordinating customs and tax valuation principles. It is anticipated that as a result of Section 1059A of the Internal Revenue Code, some taxpayers will claim higher transfer prices for customs purposes. No estimate has been made of the revenue.
